Tilly Rutherford

Yves Baron Marina Perfileva, Tilly Rutherford
and Barry Upton

If I tell you that Tilly Rutherford is President of Tilly Tunes, Chairman at Digger Music, Director at Lisson Records, President of "tilly rutherford music", has been a world wide consultant at Distrionics and is one of the founders of PWL - The Hit Factory, you'll get an idea of how important music is to him. In fact he has many more credits to his name for record companies and recording studios throughout the years so I was very interested to meet him on one of his recent trips to Pattaya and ask some questions.

Unfortunately my first question asking him how he came to find himself in Pattaya brought forth "I hated the place when I first came here 18 years ago". He was here for three days following on from a trip to Bangkok. The Hard Rock Hotel had just opened and from there he was taken to Walking Street with some friends unfortunately whilst there he saw a lot of fights, a lot of police and a lot of drunks and decided it wasn't for him. However, he rediscovered Pattaya five years ago whilst on a trip to Cambodia and since then has made it a regular stopping point when he is in Asia. "So what is it about Pattaya that you like now?" I asked. "Well it's mainly the people, the friends I've made here" many of them as you can probably guess are musicians and he is also a great lover of all the live music that's available here.

If you don't know the name Tilly Rutherford you will certainly know some of the artists he's signed during his long-term musical career. Singers such as Kylie, Jason Donovan, Rick Astley and Bad Manners who he signed in 1979 after losing out on Madness. The ska scene was very popular at that time and unfortunately David Robinson of Stiff Records gazumped him. So along with Roger Lomas who had already produced The Selector he put Bad Manners into the studio and this fun, energetic bunch of chaps led by The Famous Buster Blood Vessel had a string of hits along with many memorable live performances.

While talking to Tilly other names crop up, David Van Day from Guys and Dolls and then Dollar, Hazel Dean and Sonia, all people he worked with. However I was curious to find out how the signing of Kylie and Jason came about. So Tilly told me that Mushroom Records in Australia had a deal with the channel that produced the soap opera Neighbours which has since spawned so many famous actors and singers. Kylie Minogue was then starring in the show and they had her record "The Locomotion" in Australia, a few months later with her manager Terry Blamey she travelled to London to see if she could make a record in the UK.

However Neighbours at that time wasn't so popular due to a disastrously early time slot and she wasn't well known in the UK. She spent most of her time in the UK cycling around and being a tourist only at the last minute did she go into a studio to lay down a very basic track of "I should be so Lucky". Stock Aitken and Waterman augmented what Kylie had sung and the track was then taken around town and duly rejected by 10 different record companies! Therefore PWL decided to back Kylie by putting her on their own label - 19 singles and four albums later it certainly seemed that they had the last laugh.

Another really interesting story from Tilly is that of the signing of Rick Astley. This came about because Pete Waterman was going out with a girl from Warrington and whilst in a working man's club saw a young Mr Astley playing drums with a local band. Pete obviously recognised some talent there and brought him back to London although at first he had nothing for him and so Rick just became the studio tea boy and general runner. However, rather in the same way as their more famous forerunners "Motown Records" there were always songs going round for different artists to try. "Never Gonna Give You Up" was given to Rick Astley to give a shot and the resulting single went on to be a number one hit in both the UK and US grossing over 15.8 million worldwide!

For a heady 3 years PWL was the number one label in the UK and along with their own signings also produced for other stars notably Donna Summers on "This time I know it's for real", Cliff Richards and Latoya Jackson (Michael's lesser known sister). As well as being fully immersed in the recordings Tilly was also in charge of all the marketing, sales, promotional support, pretty much everything for the concerts such as those at Wembley arena and all the Hit Factory tours. However when Pete Waterman eventually sold 50% of the company to Warner Brothers the fun really went out of the work and it was time to leave.

So Tilly set up his own consultancy and helped out on popular tracks such as Cotton Eye Joe and by putting people within the music industry in touch due to the connections he had made over the years. Certainly the owner of Distrionics could see the benefit of having such a person work for him asking Tilly to join as his World Wide Consultant. This involved them travelling around the world to visit music conventions and production companies and for seven years they had a marvellous time. Travel always involved turning left on the plane and enjoying the best food and drink money could buy. The company was then sold in the year 2000 at which time Tilly then set up a digital company buying some catalogues that have served him very well.

So to the present day and a new venture as DJ Rutherford is soon to be one of the DJs at "United DJs The Station of the Stars". He will only be in Pattaya for another few days but has been enjoying his time here spent with other "musos" such as Barry Upton, Marina Perfilava and Yves Baron. Lovely to meet you Tilly come back and visit us all again soon!

Along with his cameraman friend Don, Buck plans a new episode centered around a weekend bonding trip with his estranged son. Heathers Season 1

Fascinated by the arrival of a new rebellious student Veronica thinks she's found an ally. However JD turns out to be a dark sociopath with his own extreme plans to deal with the bullies. Television adaption of the 1988 black comedy 'Heathers'

Recommended Series: The Walking Dead.

Set in a Post Apocalyptic world following a virus outbreak where if people die they return as Zombies. We follow Sheriff Rick Grimes trying to protect his family and survive. Along their journey they meet many interesting characters all with their own back stories. Those who stick around form a community that follows Rick.

Yes there are Hordes of Zombies with no compromise on the Gore. But the nastiest monsters in the show are most often the Humans. The show isn't as superficial as you might imagine. This isn't just a saga of Survival it also retains the semblance of humanity when moral choices have to be made that don't always sit too well.

So why do I recommend this show? Because unlike any other where you know the main characters can't die with The Walking Dead this just isn't the case. In fact some fans have even protested the loss of a favourite character they had invested in.

However, the payoff for no compromise is heightened suspense like nothing else you've seen before. Sometimes the pace is slow but it's worth staying the course. Not for the faint of heart, but worth your time if you want to be captivated and immersed.

Based on the comic book series by Robert Kirkman The Walking Dead has just finished it's 8th Season with plans for a 9th and beyond.

GAME RELEASES

E3 2018

E3 is an annual trade event for the Video games industry to show off its future releases. After watching most of the coverage I thought I would share my favorite up and coming games.

Forza Horizon 4.

Watching the Xbox event, I was greatly impressed by this racing game. Not only does it look amazing, probably down to the power of the Xbox One S, but the speed and smoothness was wonderful at a rock solid 60fps.

This Forza is located in Britain and features the changing seasons. When a season changes it not only changes the graphics of the landscape but also the handling of your vehicle. So be prepared for rain or Ice making you skid around. I've even heard rumors that the sheep are Shawn in the Summer. Exclusively for Xbox owners.

The Last of Us Part 2.

I'm not a fan of featuring sequels, but this Post Apocalyptic Survival Horror game by Naughty Dog looks as tense and involving as the original. It uses the combat mechanics from the Uncharted Series but in a much darker setting. Constantly being outnumbered you have to run and hide, creating weapon on the fly, and ambushing your enemy.

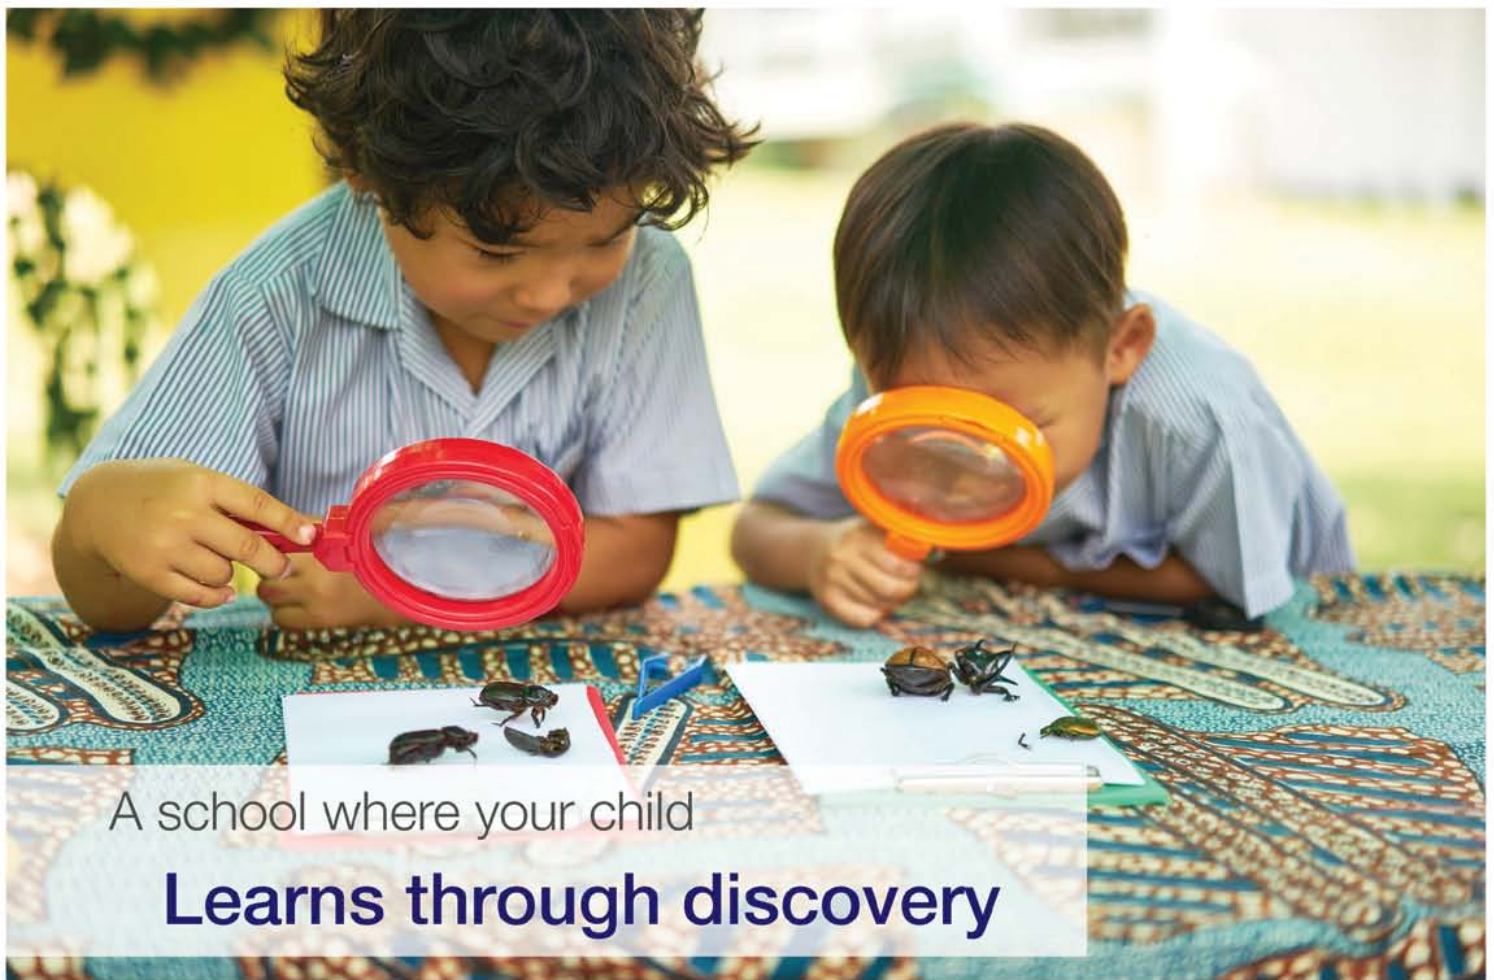

Be prepared for a tense, exciting and emotionally moving experience once again for the Playstation 4.

Fallout 76.

Possibly the game of the show for me. The idea of playing a fallout game online and in co-op mode sounds enthralling. The Fallout series is a first person role playing game set in a universe where the cold war took a nasty turn. Survivors from the atomic war lived inside Fallout shelters sometimes for generations. Your character wakes up inside Vault 76 and ventures out into the post nuclear world. In these first person games you have to scavenge for resources, fight off mutant enemies and also build and construct your own settlements. Four times the size of Fallout 4 and using an enhanced of that game engine, 76 is bigger and looks better. I believe you can play this single player but exploring the world with friends sounds like it could be great fun.

Planet of the Grapes

Now then, here's a question for you. How many grape varieties can you name from memory? On a good day, I can probably manage a few dozen but it's unlikely that anyone has memorised all of them. You see, there are about ten thousand species of wine-grapes in the world, although only about a thousand of them are used commercially. Most of the world's wine comes from a mere three dozen different varieties. Wine grapes are known technically as Vitis vinifera and confusingly some grapes have different names in different places. Syrah and Shiraz are the best-known examples, but there are plenty of others.

The vast majority of wine grapes are somewhat obscure. How often have you come across wine made from Bogazkere, Neherleschol or the fearsome-sounding Magaratch Bastardo? Not often, I bet. Most grape varieties have remained in their places or origin but others have boldly gone where no grapes have gone before. Take Chardonnay for example. Its spiritual home is in Burgundy but it thrives wherever wine is produced. The French Cabernet Sauvignon shows up in nearly every wine-producing country and Syrah seems to grow almost anywhere if the climate is right.

You might be surprised to know that a huge percentage of the world's wine is made by blending different grape varieties. The other day I overheard some bloke remark that blended wines are inferior to those which are not. This of course is complete nonsense and I would have told him so, had he not been about six foot four and looked like a gorilla. When you drink Chianti, a wine from Bordeaux or even Champagne, you're drinking a blend. Red Bordeaux is made from the classic blend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot with often a dash of something else, depending on the winery and its location.

There are several reasons for blending. In the case of wines sold under a trade name, blending enables the winery to offer a consistent product. Some grapes are too tannic or too acidic to make a decent wine on their own and so they're blended with other less aggressive grapes. Blending is also used to maximize the "expression" of a wine by enhancing the aroma, colour, texture or the body.

The classic blend of Sauvignon Blanc and Semillon is widely used in France and has also caught on in Australia. It works well because it combines the vibrant acidity and grassy aromas of Sauvignon Blanc with the low acidity, softer mouth-feel and slightly oily texture of Semillon.

Château Beauregard Lagupeau 2015 (white), Graves, France (Bt. 899 at Central/Tops)

The name Graves (GRAHV) is derived from the French for "gravelly land" and has nothing to do with tombs. It's a district south of the city of Bordeaux and it's the only sub-region that produces the three main types of wine: reds, dry whites and sweet whites. Château Beauregard Lagupeau (sha-TOH boh-ruh-GAR la-GOO-poh) lies at about 350 feet above sea level and it's one of the highest vineyards in the region.

This wine, made by Jacques and Marie-Laure Perromat contains 60% Semillon and 40% Sauvignon Blanc. It's a pale gold colour and looks inviting in the glass. It smells inviting too, because there's a fruity aroma that you'd normally associate with a warm-climate Chardonnay. There are also hints of pears, green apples, honey and herby hints of dill. A classy aroma indeed.

The taste comes as a pleasant surprise, because with all that Sauvignon in the blend I was expecting a vigorous bite of acidity. Instead, the wine has a remarkably smooth, silky texture with plenty of fruit up front and only the mildest acidity. There's a long, lingering finish too, always the hallmark of a good wine. With an ABV of 13%, this really is a little charmer; an easy drinker which I'd be happy to enjoy all evening.

It would make a good partner for raw or lightly cooked seafood or vegetables and fresh herbs such as asparagus, peas, basil, and tarragon.

"Vineyards" Sauvignon-Semillon (white), Australia (Bt 349 @ Tesco-Lotus)

This is one of Tesco's own brand, which I have found to be reliable, decent wines. It's a pale gold colour and has an attractive tangy aroma of apples and gooseberries up front, with a hint of honey in the background. Incidentally, if this sounds a bit fanciful, aromas such as gooseberry, lemongrass, pear and honey are quite common in Semillon.

There's a pleasing tang of acidity from the Sauvignon too which gives the wine a sense of firmness. If you find acid in wine generally repellent, you shouldn't have a problem with this one.

The wine is dry, but there's the faintest hint of sweetness. It's refreshing, gentle on the palate making it an easy drinker. It also has a decently long finish and although I'd classify this as a "basic" wine it's tremendously enjoyable and excellent value. At this price it would make a good aperitif but it would go well with salad or creamy pasta.

It's well-made too with a good sense of balance and even a feeling of elegance. For a wine with this price tag, that's a rare quality.

Dining

By GLORIA JONES

Grazing Indian style - the Thali at Alibaba

For some years now smart New Yorkers have extolled the virtues of “grazing” - dining on a selection of starters rather than going for the traditional format of several courses. It’s a really great idea if you want to try a selection of tasty bites and an excellent idea for first timers to an Indian restaurant as it gives diners the chance to sample various dishes.

I was curious to do a little Indian grazing myself at Ali Baba as they have an amazing and varied selection of starters: Bhajis, Samosas, Pakoras – deep fried battered Paneer (cheese), Chicken or Vegetables, Prawn Puri and Butterfly etc. etc. However, at the end of their really extensive menu I spotted

“The Thali A Meal for One” and realised that Alibaba had already done it all for me. This was exactly what I was after an assortment of Indian cuisine served with small portions to try. If you’re in a rush, ordering lots of dishes takes time, so instead this is a great and easy way to sample many different options.

You can choose from Vegetarian or Non Vegetarian and with a basket of bread and a delicious dessert is so plentiful and filling it could easily be a shared dish for the budget conscious. Really amazing value with a great glass of house wine at only 100 baht this would also make a quick and excellent lunch choice.

The SHAKARITHALI (Vegetarian Thali) is only 590 baht and includes Vegetable Samosa, Onion bhaji, Papadoms, Paneer (cheese) Tikka, Tandoori Curry made from Capsicum peppers, 2 types of Daal – Peli and Makhini. Also an assortment of curried vegetables such Aloo Jeera (spicy cubed potatoes) Kadhai Mushrooms and Onion Kulcha..

The MASAHRITHALI (Non Vegetarian) is 675 baht and also includes Lamb Tikka, Prawn Korma, Rogan Josh Butter Chicken and delicious chicken tandoori and King prawns beautifully blackened just sufficiently to give a really delightful crunch but not to taste too burned - superb!

It really is a jewel of a meal and something you can try any time to get a superb taster of the great traditional Indian food from Ali Ba

SENSATION RISE THE WHITE PARTY

After a four year sabbatical (leave of absence), The White Party returns to The Land of Smiles to further enhance the caliber and status of the EDM scene here in Thailand.

Starting from very humble beginnings the world famous Sensation White Party began its life back in 2000. After the first edition, Miles Stutterheim, brother of Sensation founder, Duncan Stutterheim, and close friend of the Sensation crew died in a car accident. When the second edition was announced, as a kind of memorial to celebrate Miles' life, visitors were informally asked to dress in white. With more than 80% of visitors adhering to the tribute, this marked the birth of the well-known Sensation dress code as we know it today. After such an amicable start, back in Ajax FC's famed Amsterdam Arena, the event has since traveled across 5 continents, been hosted in 36 countries and continues to unite Electronic Dance Music lovers around the globe, year after year.

This year's event in BITEC is set to raise the roof as the indoor arena unfolds to allow for the largest fancy dress rave it has ever seen but sure not to be the last. We say fancy dress, as the dress code is all white and people tend to look rather dapper in white, regardless of the garbs they wear. The dress code, however, isn't the only thing that is white, uh uh... The renowned and un-imitable MR White will be a major player at the event as he has been since 2009, bringing each and every event to life with his outlandish looks and stylish elegance on the decks.

Also showering the whitewash of people destined to attend the aptly themed Rise edition of Sensation's White Party is a crew of House Heavies sure to take the intensely growing scene in the city to the next level. The who is who of the dance collective will be pleased to know that Whoisjody will be launching the night followed by Dirty South with a helping of some lyrical wizardry by none other than MC Gee build the night into an unforgettable one for all those lucky enough to grab the limited entrance tickets available.

And not to disappoint the home crowd either, Sensation have arranged for a few favorites here in Asia will continue to lift the vibe and have all those white booties bouncing with a helping of bass from KO:YU, Dannic and Sam Felt. Then top 20 DJ of DJ Mags Top 100 Dash Berlin will be bringing this housey hoedown to close seeing out the hardcore among you after a whole 8 hours of all things house.

It isn't all about the music either, sponsor Heineken has a unique little trick up their sleeves also, just add a little extra flare to the night on the 29th. They will be showcasing their new Heineken® Star Hive concept which basically translates into some magic of their own as they offer you to charge your devices via "Star Hive Sound Recycle" - a system that converts the sound waves produced by the earth-shattering array of speakers into electricity - yes, you did read right, they convert the music of your favourite DJ's into electricity for your mobi (just wish Moby was there - Moby charged my mobi...). Personally gotta have me some of that and if that was enough, for all of you with deep enough pockets, the Platinum Decks get some personal styling before the event by the team from Smileclub Thailand - so you don't even have to think a single out of place hair, just rock up in those whites and the artisans will do the rest - nice touch.

For more info and where to grab your tickets from check out website below and we'll see you on the whiter side of life.

For anyone who believes that there's more to fishing than just choosing the right bait and that being ready with a "tall tale" is just as much a part of being a true angler as knowing how to properly play a fish, here are some great fishermen's tales.

George W. Bush and Vladimir Putin

In 2007 President George W. Bush took Russian President Vladimir Putin fishing on a lake near the Bush family compound in Kennebunkport, Maine. According to The New York Times while they were in Bush's boat Putin caught a bass and was photographed holding it aloft. Now according to most "experienced fishing eyes" the fish appeared to be about 20 inches long. However by the time the leaders had reached the dock and added their own version of "fake news" Putin's fish was reported to have been a more respectable 31 inches.

The ensuing controversy drew international media attention even with two Russian TV stations joining in and doubting the size of Putin's fish. Some speculated that Bush had purposely exaggerated the "haul" in an effort to improve U.S.-Russian relations which were a little tense at that time. However one editor:David Benedetto, of "Saltwater Sportsman" lept to the President's defence saying "We've all had a non-fisherman on the boat and added a few inches or pounds to his or her catch".

Talking fish

This may not be the first instance of a person claiming to have found a talking fish and strictly speaking might not really be classed as a fishing tale in that the guys who described these events weren't actually fishermen . However back in 2003 two workers in New York City's New Square Fish Market (one a Christian, the other a Jew) said that they were about to kill a carp to be made into gefilte fish when the fish began shouting 'Tzaruch shemirah' and 'Hasof bah,'" which in ancient Hebrew translates as "Everyone needs to account for themselves because the end is nigh." The workers then went on to say that the fish carried on by identifying itself as the soul of a local Hasidic man who had died the previous year, and instructed the Jewish worker to carry on with his prayers and study of the Torah. I don't know how much alcohol had been consumed that day by the two but ultimately it must have made them hungry as they opted to kill the fish and eat it anyway!

When is a Catfish not a Catfish ?

The Shanghaiist were sent a picture of what seemed to be a catfish literally the size of a car that had a human corpse inside with a caption that read "Each year, a few people will be drowned mysteriously in Huadu's Furong Reservoir. It was not until recently when the brother of a certain official went swimming in the reservoir with his friend and were drowned that the secret was unravelled! It's a 3 metre long man-eating catfish whose head alone is 1 metre wide! After cutting up the catfish people were surprised to find the remains of a man inside!"

On closer inspection the Shanghaiist followed up the story by revealing that the creature photographed was actually a whale shark (not a catfish) and being a saltwater ocean creature simply wouldn't be found in landlocked reservoir. Thus completely debunking the tale.

Fiction over Fact

The Director of the University of Minnesota's Institute for Mathematics, Douglas Arnold was contacted by the Fresh-Water Fishing Hall of Fame with an unusual request. He was sent a 1949 black-and-white photograph of a fisherman named Louis Spray holding what was supposed to be a 63.5-inch-long, 69-pound, 11-ounce muskie (also spelled musky), big enough for a world record. Fifty-six years later a rival record sanctioning group questioned Spray's veracity. Unfortunately as the actual mounted fish had been destroyed in a fire in 1959, it was no longer possible to recheck it so the hall of fame wanted Arnold to find a way.

Now Arnold, who also happened to be an avid fisherman, used Spray's height of 6 feet and comparative geometry to calculate that the muskie in the picture was most likely well short of the length claimed by Spray and therefore probably below the claimed also. Despite these findings the hall of fame decided to let Spray's record stand even displaying a replica of the fish in its Hayward, Wis., museum!

The One that Got Away !

With a maximum length of nearly 14 feet and a top weight of around 440 pounds, the pirarucu, scientific name Arapaima gigas, is one of the largest freshwater fishes in the world. The giant air-breathing predator is seldom seen outside the Amazon basin. However, on the other side of the planet, in Malaysia, a few anglers recently claimed they encountered the pirarucu in their country's Kenyir Lake -- although, naturally, the fish got away. Villagers at Kampung Baung, a town that borders the lake also claimed to have seen the giant fish, which the article warned was capable of leaping several meters into the air and capsizing small boats with its "powerful head." had seen an elderly Chinese man releasing two of the fish, which he said he'd brought from overseas, into a nearby river because they had grown too large for him to manage.

Personally I caught the Irish pike record in Five mile Town back in the late 90's... "It was thiiiiiiiiisssssss Size".

TIGHT LIES (Sorry Lines) everyone

Tournament from Khao Kheow

Another day dawned and golfers made their way to the Khao Kheow Country Club, to play this challenging course for the PAGS tournament. The field of 96 players included 5 Ladies and everybody had an eye on the weather conditions, with good reason too, as a few storms had been experienced over the previous few days. They played the A & B combination, with the course being in reasonable condition after the recent storms, with a variety of the Club's yellow & white tee boxes. Greens were running smoothly, although the recent rain had softened the fairways reducing much run, with a heavy 30 minute storm dropping plenty more water on the course. Organisers had implemented lift, clean & place on the closely mown areas to avoid the dreaded mud ball on the soft fairways, an insightful decision.

Steve Truelove (12) was the standout performer this month, shooting 75, to claim the Low Gross, 1st in the A Flight with an outstanding 45 points & his maximum 2 technicals.

The Ladies winner was regular PAGS participant, Jeeranan Duncan with a solid 36 points, to go with her NTP on A5.

A flight for handicaps 0 – 12 runner-up was Tommy Marshall (8) with an impressive 41 points, to go with his approach on B1, while Peter Park (6) picked up 3rd spot on 37 points, plus an Approach on A6.

B flight for handicaps 13 - 19 winner was Craig Banks (14) with 39 points to go with his Long Drive on A9, while the minor placings being a tightly contested affair with a countback required. Richard Goodwyn (18) got the nod with his 19 points on the back 9, over Mikael Andersen (18) after both signed for 38 points.

In the C flight for handicaps 20 & above, there was a clear win for Todd Fox (37) with 42 points, 1 ahead of Thierry Danzas (27), while the bronze went to John Duffy (24) with a creditable 39 points.

A shout out of Congratulations goes to John Seton for his first ever Hole in 1 on Hole A5.

Dave's team once again did a tip top job in the tucker department, with plenty of non-golfers coming along to enjoy the social atmosphere of the evening with their golfing partners, family & friends. As always, there is only 1 person to blame if you go home hungry from Hemingway's Jomtien after a PAGS presentation !

Unixx TR-Motorsport Suffer Costly Reliability Issues in Buriram

After the sweltering heat and humidity of Sepang in Malaysia, the Unixx TR-Motorsport Team came home to the Chang International Circuit in Buriram for Rounds 3 & 4 of the Thailand Super Series 2018.

Sepang proved a successful weekend with the Dane Thomas Raldorf and Co-driver Shaun Varney from New Zealand bringing home a good haul of points under difficult conditions.

Rounds 3 & 4 would prove an even bigger challenge as several new supercars had joined the GTM Class for this season. This event would also mark the start of the season for the lower class cars in the Pattaya based team with veteran racer Tony Percy and the Honda Integra DC5 competing in the Super 2000 / Touring Car Class and the young Viking from Denmark, Victor Jensen who will be out to prove his worth in the Super Production Class with the Honda Jazz. As always the team arrived early in the week to begin preparations for the task ahead, Thursday was the first time the cars could get some track time and see how they were shaping up for the weekend ahead.

Practice

The success of Sepang was soon forgotten as several issues were affecting all three cars, first of all the Porsche 997 had gearbox, gear shift and suspension issues as well as a loose left side door, the Honda DC5 was leaking oil and the brand new K20 engine was down on power with a suspected piston issue while the Honda Jazz was also down on power by around 20HP. The teams of mechanics worked well into the night to replace the essential parts to get the cars in good shape, by 2 am Friday morning both the Honda DC5 and Honda Jazz were ready to race. Work on the Porsche carried on until well into the next day as the gearbox and gear shifters were overhauled while the door was secured in place. With all the time spent on the repairs no time was left to alter the setup in time for qualifying, this lack of time would prove costly.

Qualifying

Tony Percy and Victor Jensen soon got to grips with the Chang international and it wasn't long until they were posting competitive times, by the end of the session Tony had qualified first in Class which was an incredible achievement considering his K20 engine had to be completely replaced the night before, the young Viking, Victor came an impressive second in class narrowly missing out on first place. Unfortunately, the success could not be continued as both Shaun and then Thomas struggled to find the right balance in their two qualifying sessions, Shaun battled hard to secure 7th in class for Race 1 while Thomas squeezed every inch out of the Porsche 997 to claim 5th in class for Race 2. The mechanics had another long night ahead to try to find the best setup and balance to give the car the best opportunity for a podium position.

GTM Supercar Race 1 – Thomas Raldorf/ Shaun Varney – Porsche 997

Shaun Varney took the first stint in the 997 while Thomas and the rest of the team watched on anxiously to see if the issues had been fixed, but it was soon obvious they hadn't been as Shaun pushed as hard as he could but with the cars lack of setup the lap times weren't competitive. This was further compounded when Shaun radioed the pit to report an issue when shifting gears. As the team made their pit stop Shaun had managed to get the car into a respectable 6th in class and now it was time for the Danish Dynamo to try push on up the field.

The race was littered with incidents resulting in several safety car periods allowing for the field to bunch up and give the team a chance of a higher position. Thomas seized the opportunity and with some expert driving and a little bit of luck crossed the line in 4th position. This was some achievement after all the issues the team had endured, however, the celebrations were soon muted as in the post-race scrutineering it was found that a technical issue had breached regulations resulting in the team being disqualified and losing 18 precious championship points. The mechanics although dejected quickly turned their attention to the setup of the car and again worked late into the night to give the guys a fighting chance in Race 2.

Due to the number of incidents in Race 1, all the teams were allowed on the track in the morning to complete several warm-up laps. Thomas duly took the Porsche out and returned to the pit gleaming as the car was now handling perfectly, demonstrated by Thomas going 1.7 seconds faster than his fastest lap in Race 1.

With the improved setup and a 10-second reduction for their mandatory pit stop/driver change, the team were confident of a top 3 position. Thomas made a solid start from 5th holding off the more powerful cars behind him while catching up to the cars ahead and eventually took 4th place. The pit window opened and in came Thomas for the driver changeover, all was looking good for a top 3 position until disaster struck.

The issue with the gearbox returned as Shaun could not get any gears to engage. The clock was ticking as the young Kiwi driver desperately tried everything and eventually got the car moving when suddenly the first gear came alive. However, the damage had already been done as the team lost far too much time. The pit stop should have been 2m 17s instead it was an agonisingly long 3m 23s which wiped out the 51-second lead Thomas had built up over the 5th place car.

Shaun tried in vain to make up the lost time but after another safety car, any chance of a top 3 position was gone. The safety car was deployed due to the Toyota Driver and Championship leader Khun Nattawude who crashed heavily into the wall promoting the team to 5th place. Shaun consolidated his position and nursed the car home to collect some much-needed points after the previous day's disqualification. In the race for the GTM Championship, the team are now 15 points behind the Toyota with all to play for in Bang Saen in six weeks' time.

Thailand Touring Car – Tony Percy – Honda Integra DC5

Veteran racer Tony Percy had better luck in the Honda Integra DC5, after taking a comfortable first in class pole position he followed up with a comfortable victory in Race 1. After making a solid start Tony began to pull away from the chasing pack and found himself in some clean air for most of the race easing over the line to win his class and take 3rd place overall. The victory was a great achievement as only 24 hours earlier his number one K20 engine had to be replaced with his spare backup engine.

Race 2

Due to his success in Race 1 additional weight was added to the DC5, the mechanics in stalled the extra weight and altered the balance and the set up accordingly. With the extra weight in the car Race 2 was never going to be easy but Tony with his years of racing experience held off the chasing pack for the entire race, again finishing first in class and third overall. Tony now leads the Class B Championship.

Super Production – Victor Jensen – Honda Jazz

At only 17 years old young Victor has shown great potential in early season testing, now it was time to show his skills on the big stage at the Chang International Circuit. The early issues with the engine had been fixed and Dane was firing on all cylinders, ready to take on the much more experienced drivers. Confidence was high after an impressive qualifying where he narrowly missed out on pole position, however, his dreams were dashed when going out on the formation lap he lost his left front wheel at turn four and had to retire the car. After some investigation by the team, it was found to be a cross-threaded nut that had caused the wheel to come loose and eventually break away. Victor returned to the pits still smiling accepting it was "Just one of those things that happen in motorsport".

Race 2

Due to no result in Race 1 Victor and the Jazz started right at the back of the grid with 11 other cars ahead of them, this did not phase the young man as the lights went out he began his charge up the field. By lap 4 Victor was in 5th place and catching up to 4th place with every corner he passed, but then more bad luck beset the team as his clutch failed dramatically reducing his speed, even though he could carry on at a slower pace it was decided to retire the car and negate any potential damage to the gearbox. The worst possible start to a new season, but again Victor was all smiles and looking forward to getting back in the hunt at Bang Saen in 5 weeks' time.

A very tough and demanding weekend for all connected with the Unixx TR-Motorsport Team but they promise to bounce back in the coastal town of Bang Saen for rounds 5 & 6 of The Thailand Super Series.

The team would like to thank their gracious sponsors for their continued support, Unixx Lubricants, AKA Traders, Amber Food & Grapes, Seara Sports, Retox Group, Freem Clothing Thailand, SCAN Global Logistics, Sky Marine Group, Inspire Thailand, Thai Tech by Thai Visa, Mogit Training, Grover & Grover Bespoke Tailors, B-Quik, Cutting Edge Group, ETS and Planet Porsche Magazine.

Will your business survive the Pattaya 'Quiet Season?'

I really don't like using the phrase; 'quiet season' it is counter intuitive with all I have learned about the law of attraction. By using negative vocabulary you set of a chain of events to expect a 'quiet season.' As a matter of fact More than 8 million people visited Pattaya in the first half of the year, putting the city on a record pace for both visitors and tourism revenue, tourism officials recorded. Tourist numbers only drop by around 2 million during the 'Planting Season' so in reality there are still many tourists in Pattaya when the rains come. Remember when you point 5 fingers there are always two pointing back at you! I hope to 'plant' a few new ideas in your head via his blog:

Many western managed business are struggling in Pattaya, and now the rainy season March through till October has hit, many may not survive, what are the 2 main aspects many of these business are missing out on?

"The art of life lies in a constant readjustment to our surroundings." —Kakuzo Okakura, from 'The Book of Tea'

Pattaya is a town like no other in Thailand, the expatriate population is larger than any I have seen in the land of Smiles. Sure Bangkok has more western tourists sleeping off the jet lag and taking in the City's temples and urban landscapes before heading to the beach resorts, then heading back home via Bangkok International or Utapao Airport. However Pattaya by contrast, has a lot of expatriate managed businesses, be it Real Estate or Visa companies, English language schools to pubs and bars where many are owned and fronted by Westerners and their investment cash.

Thailand's tourism has had its challengers over the years, in my living memory I can start from the Tsunami, then the coups, and many other challenges that have made the tourist numbers bounce year on year dramatically, if you look on a chart over the last decade the bounces look like a Crypto currency. However we can all agree that Thailand has an amazing ability to bounce back just after setbacks. Many retirees in Thailand rely on the Western comforts provided in Pattaya and their pension cash is duly spent on the Pattaya economy, this helps to provide a stable income for the western managed companies. However times are changing, inflation does not sit still, and nor should business owners rely on the pensioner who arrives the first minute after 'Happy Hour' starts has two beers and goes home as soon as it finishes.

Now we are seeing the Chinese arrive, and unlike the Russians who came of the back of a strong currency that rose and fell like a cake in an oven, China's business has been growing for decades and their economy is robust, unlike many westerners most Chinese have savings, and we are seeing a nouveau riche like never before. Many Westerners who own businesses here tell me that they are not seeing the benefit of the Chinese travelers because they are mostly rounded up and shoved on fleets of buses herded around to spas and restaurants that are on the tour operators approved list of stops where their entourage can alight, destroy buffets like locusts, and generally behave quite raucously. Not too different from say a cheap package football tour for westerners. Taking in the wider picture; if you rely on tourism for your living, then to label the entire 1.3 billion Chinese with a few videos you have seen about badly behaved Chinese tourists on YouTube is foolhardy at best.

These tours are called “Dollar tours” as they mostly appeal to the poorer traveler, however I am led to believe by my parent company who manage Chinese marketing for Western business that; these tightly packed and regimented tours are losing favour in China and their days are numbered.

The new focus should be on the Frequent Independent Traveler who books everything in China and these tourists are well behaved and willing to spend more cash on a good vacation well away from the crowds. The other aspect I see being overlooked by many Western business, is the approach to Digital Media. Most business tell me they got on to Facebook and started a page where they have been consistently posting stuff every day and created and published a few videos, but both mediums have been providing less and less leads over time. What else is there? Well where can I start? It's not what you do it's the way that you do it!

The success of any Digital Media is all about how well you tell your story!

Humans have been telling stories since the discovery of fire and marshmallows. The entire movie industry around the world is all dependent on how good a story they tell, CGI and special effects are nothing without the narrative, so why do business owners think you can post an image of a pork chop on Facebook and expect business to flood in? It does not work like that! Social Media is a stark contrast between what social media tells you it is; ‘a way to connect with friends and family.’ To what business thinks it is, which is; ‘a media platform to get more people to come to buy a product or service.’ Your message has to sit well between the two. The best marketing on Earth tells a story, a relatable human story that touches emotions. Remember:

People will always forget what you do, but they will never forget how you made them feel.

Every sale on Earth is made with an emotion, so without feelings how can you expect to sell anything?

This is my way of saying you don't need the inward kudos of thousands of likes on your Facebook page, but you do need more blogs and press releases on your website and a social policy that brands your business as a corporation that is passionate about what you do, and how what you do can save time or help the human race better themselves somehow, people then, after much consistency and social media sharing of your passion, see you as the ‘go to person’ in your industry, consequently whenever they think of your product or service, the karma of your hard work eventually becomes clearly visible when their bums are sat on seats in your restaurant, hotel or business.

96FM PATTAYA PEOPLE RADIO – ALL ABOUT THE MUSIC

'Sunshine Hits' on 96 is the station's motto. However, what is a 'Sunshine Hit' you may ask? Basically, it's any music that is bright, popular, uplifting, with a feel good factor and compliments Pattaya as a fun city. Of course, not everyone will be satisfied by our output but other stations are available, providing dance, rap, extended news etc. If that still doesn't fulfill your needs, the internet can provide every genre available.

Our philosophy at Pattaya People Radio is to provide a commercial soundtrack to each beautiful day here in our wonderfully colourful city. We target the age range of Expats most likely to be listening to local radio on a daily basis, whether at home, driving, or living far away but needing a connection to keep in touch with this area.

Therefor you're going to hear plenty of singalongable classic oldies with a smattering of recent releases that will fit into the 'Sunshine Hit' description. In addition there's news from around the world and a regularly updated 'Whats On – Pattaya Events and Gig Guide' featuring a 'heads up' on what's happening in the coming week and in a few weeks time. We even try to make the ads entertaining so it's a feast of non stop fun.

We have hosts and feature programming but the music is the main ingredient. Best way to judge, is by observing how the next track that comes on makes you feel. Does it make you smile and get you trying to sing? Does it make you feel like dancing or, at least, tapping your fingers or foot? Feedback is always useful and the biggest response we get are from those sixties and seventies fans with the eighties being another popular era.

Let's face it, songs by the The Beatles, The Rolling Stones, The Kinks, The Small Faces, The Who, Tamla Motown, etc., will never die and still sound as fresh as when they were first released. Tracks by T.Rex, David Bowie, The Bee Gees, Abba and other amazing musical seventies artists have a fun quality that has never been surpassed.

The appearance of the synthesizer in the eighties changed the sound of popular music and a whole new generation of shiny artists emerged focusing on production as well as good songwriting and performance. In addition there have been some original and interesting new artists in recent years who make great radio tracks. Even the fifties, despite using basic recording techniques, gave us Rock 'n Roll artists with so much character they certainly fit into the 'Sunshine Hit' category.

So, our lives really can be all about the music we love and at 96FM we care about our musical output and try to give you that 'wow' factor everytime a new track is played.

Whatever you might be doing, driving, cooking, relaxing by the pool, partying, Enjoy the vibrant and go-ahead dynamic sound of 'Sunshine Hits' on 96FM, Pattaya People Radio.....DIG IT.

Are banks a safe place to deposit money?

One of the things that we are often told by people is that they prefer to deposit money in a bank because even though the interest rates are low they feel their money is a lot safer.

However, let us examine the facts. Any guarantees to the security of your money is only as good as the legislation behind it. In an EU bank a person is only guaranteed up to 100,000 Euros. In the UK it is £85,000. In the worst case scenario any monies deposited and invested above that would be completely lost. Therefore if you had 250,000 Euros in an EU bank and things went wrong you would lose 150,000 euros – Fact.

Now I hear you say that banks are safe and reputable institutions. Again let us look at facts. After the banking crash of only 10 years ago over 70 banks went out of business. Although some were bailed out by governments, others were allowed to fail and in some cases investors lost their entire life savings. The idea that all bankers are responsible people looking after your best interests and your money is another myth. We have all seen how many were caught playing virtual roulette with their customers money - potentially with your money ! All this to generate huge profits for themselves whilst at the same time giving you a pittance in return.

If we go back again to the bank crash of 10 years ago and look at an example of where it all went wrong we can see that banks were lending huge amounts of money in what is known as the Subprime market. The banks were lending up to 130% of the value on a property to people who could not prove what their earnings were. These people in some cases, might even have been unemployed but all they had to do was sign a piece of paper saying they were working, earning X amount of money and could afford the repayments. Of course this caused a housing bubble and because of a surge in demand the prices escalated. Before too long people started defaulting on payments which caused property prices to crash and the banks could not recover their loans.

Ask yourself a question. Would you lend 130% of the value of something to someone you who said they could afford the repayments without undertaking basic checks? No, of course you wouldn't. However that was what the banks were doing with your money. In other words they were being highly irresponsible with your hard earned cash.

had never met before
course you wouldn't.
were being highly

Of course banks have a role to play in today's world. People need somewhere to have their salary or pension paid in which they can access any time of the day or night. Standing orders and debits are easily arranged. Payments can be paid over the telephone, the internet or simply with a plastic card. They are very good at that type of thing. However for saving and investing I would recommend that you think long and hard as to whether they are the best option. The returns are poor and your money is nowhere as near as safe as you think. On top of that you are only offered the products that makes them the most money. They are not independent. They do not search the whole market for what is the best option for you.

We are able to give totally independent advice on a range of savings and investments. If you have any questions, would like a financial review or want recommendations of what and where to invest your money we can be contacted at:

Doing the 90-day Report

If you are a foreigner staying in Thailand for a period longer than 90 consecutive days holding a Non-Immigrant Visa or Extension of Stay, you are required by Thai Immigration to report your current address every 90 days. You must file this report within 15 days before, or 7 days after, your 90-day period expires. However, if you leave Thailand anytime during the 90-day period, then the day count will restart from 1 upon your re-entry into Thailand.

Filing the 90-day report is fairly easy. You can report to Thai Immigration either in person, or you can authorize someone to report for you. You can even send the notification via registered mail or through the online notification. You can file your 90-day report (or authorize someone to file for you) at any of the following locations:

Immigration Bureau Office, Chaengwattana Road, Bangkok
One Stop Center Chamchuri Square Centre (if your visa was issued here) Immigration offices throughout the country. If you would like to report to Thai Immigration via registered mail, you will need to send the following required documents:

Copy of all passport pages (up to the latest arrival stamp in the Kingdom or latest visa stamp)

Copy of arrival/departure card TM. 6 (front and back)

Previous notifications of staying over 90 days (if any)

Completely filled in and signed notification form TM. 47

Envelope with 5 Baht stamp affixed and return address of foreigner for the officer in charge to send back the lower part of form TM. 47 after having received the notification. This part must be kept for reference and for future notifications of staying over 90 days.

You must then send these documents to this address, keeping in mind that they should arrive 7 days before your 90-day period expires:

90 DAYS REGISTRATION, IMMIGRATION DIVISION 1 Government Complex Building B 120 MOO 3, CHAENGWATTANA ROAD, SOI 7, LAKSI, BANGKOK. 10210

Please note that you have to keep the receipt of the registration for verification purposes when sending registered mail. If you would like to do the 90-day reporting online, please check this link:

<https://extranet.immigration.go.th/fn90online/online/tm47/TM47Action.do?cmd=acceptTerm>

It is better to keep track of the rules of Thai Immigration at all times during your stay in the country, as failure to file your 90-day report can result in a fine of 2,000 THB, and can increase to up to 5,000 THB once you get arrested.

If you are in Pattaya and need to go to the local immigration office this is located in: Soi 5 Moo 12, Jomtien. Opening Hours: weekdays from 08:30 till 16:30,. Closed: weekends and holidays (although they are trialling some ½ day Saturday openings) For information telephone: +66 (0) 38 252 750

MARITAL PROPERTY

By Magna Carta Law Office

Marital Property or Sin Somros are all properties and financial assets acquired by a couple during their marriage, ordinarily used by them and their children while they are living together for shelter or transportation, or for household, educational, recreational or social purposes. It consists of:

1. property acquired during marriage;
2. property acquired by either spouse during marriage through a will of gift made in writing if it is declared by such will or document of gift to be Marital Property;
3. fruits of Personal Property.

Anything that belonged to one spouse before the marriage is Non-marital property or Sin Suan Tua.

Each spouse is the manager of his or her own Sin Suan Tua. It consists of:

1. property belonging to either spouse before marriage;
2. property for personal use, dress or ornament suitable for station in life, or tools necessary for carrying on the profession of either spouse;
3. property acquired by either spouse during marriage through a will or gift;
4. Khongman.

The concern on property division does not usually arise during the marriage, but when a couple decides to separate. Upon divorce, the Marital Property shall be divided equally between spouses.

In managing the Marital Property in the following cases, the husband and wife have to be joint manager, or one spouse has to obtain consent from the other:

1. Selling, exchanging, sale with the right of redemption, letting out property on hire-purchase, mortgaging, releasing mortgage to mortgagor or transferring the right of mortgage on immovable property or on mortgageable movable property.

2. Creating or distinguishing the whole or a part of the servitude, right of inhabitation, right of superficies, usufruct or charge on immovable property.
3. Letting immovable property for more than three years.
4. Lending money
5. Making a gift unless it is a gift for charitable, social or moral purposes and is suitable to the family condition.
6. Making a compromise.
7. Submitting a dispute to arbitration.
8. Putting up the property as guarantee or security with a competent official or the Court.

The management of the Marital Property in any case other than those mentioned above can be made only by one spouse without having to obtain consent from the other.

Where either spouse is personally liable to perform an obligation incurred before or during marriage, such performance shall be first made out of his or her Personal Property; if the obligation is not performed in full, it shall be satisfied out of his or her portion of the Marital Property.

Where both spouses are common debtors, the performance shall be made out of the Marital Property and the Personal Property of both spouses. If either spouse is adjudged bankrupt, the Marital Property is divided by operation of law as from the date of adjudication.

OLDMUTUAL

STRANDED THAI INVESTORS.

When Old Mutual banned Thai based brokers from selling their products in Thailand, they left many long-time residents of the Kingdom stranded. Of course they paid lip service to serving their best interests by saying escaping what they called one of the biggest money laundering countries in the world and letting the brokers who had sold the bond to them originally continue to serve them.

Great in theory but in reality unsustainable for the broker. With Friends Provident the second biggest operator in Thailand doing the same thing brokers were left trying to convince expats that Royal London one of the last remaining suppliers were worth buying. Maybe some of their products but it was difficult to sell their investments resulting in most brokers leaving Thailand because there was no way to earn a sustainable income.

As a result a large majority of Thai residents were left scrambling wondering what to do with their OMI Skandia and Friends Provident products? One such client was happy to find a British based broker who could manage their portfolio. The following is an example of a reply to a stranded client to illustrate how much better it would be for you to do the same:

"To address your questions in more detail – firstly – Who is Morningstar? Essentially Morningstar are the world's leading investment research firm, starting over thirty years ago to have almost five thousand staff in 27 countries covering over half a million individual investments. They provide all our investment research and investment portfolio construction information to provide world leading investments that would normally only be available to institutional investors. Morningstar do not hold any of your money, they simply provide the information to help investment professionals arrive at the right investments for you. At the moment your investment is held by Old Mutual in one investment fund – voyager – what we are proposing is that the money stays exactly where it is – with Old Mutual – although instead it will be invested in eighteen different funds managed by the leading investment managers around the world – all interviewed and rated by Morningstar. They have rated the Old Mutual Voyager fund you hold at present and it's 1 star – that is the lower rating for performance. It's performed lowest of similar funds over the last five years – that's why we have recommended you change your investment to a better investment portfolio.

The cost of your existing fund is high too, at over 2% per annum – the average cost of the new funds is 0.58% per annum – about 70% less expensive. At the time you were recommended the voyager fund that's how things were – there wasn't the option to have this type of institutional investment at a competitive cost.

So just to be clear – your money is managed by one company at present – Old Mutual – and it is held by them too. We are recommending Old Mutual continue to hold the money – the only change is that instead of being in one fund – you will be in eighteen. The investment is very transparent – you will have investments in money market funds and in emerging markets – at the moment with the Old Mutual fund you have no transparency – you have no idea whether you have emerging markets or money market investments in your portfolio. Of course you do – you've just never seen the detail.

What we have recommended is a globally diversified portfolio made up of eighteen individual funds that have been selected because they are highly rated – the best managers in the best firms running the best funds. If one of the fund managers moves, the fund starts to underperform etc. then they will be recommended we take over the management from Old Mutual who have not been performing well.

The individual fund information factsheets have been attached to have a look at – each one is two pages – so eighteen x two is thirty six pages – sorry it's quite a lot to look at.

Hope I have answered the questions you have raised. What we are proposing is better investment management at lower cost and on an active basis – there isn't a better way to run money."

2015 Honda CBR600, in more euphoric economic times, the 600-class sport bikes were getting significant upgrades every two years. But consumer tastes have shifted away from the race replicas and both manufacturers and buyers are more cautious these days. The pace of innovation has slowed, but that doesn't mean the bikes are slow. Today's test case is the Honda CBR600RR. CBRs have been a benchmark since the 600 class was invented. Pattaya police to get tough on tourist vehicle rentals.

From now on Pattaya police have said that any tourist caught driving a rental vehicle without a licence will be fined up to 1000 baht. Also that the vehicle in question will be confiscated and the company that has rented said vehicle must pay another fine of up to 2000 baht when they go to collect it.

Police Major Arut Saphanon said that the reason for the change is because many tourists don't know the highway code and have not had any training which leads to accidents. Also that foreigners who commit crimes in Pattaya have been seen fleeing the scene of the crime in rented vehicles.

Tourists now need to produce an international licence, their home country driving licence and a passport when renting. They also need to carry these document to show the police if stopped - failure to do so will result in the vehicle being taken away. Expats can take their home country licence and a certified copy from their consulate or embassy in Thailand to the Department of Land Transport and get a Thai licence.
