Under the Roof club will be doing plenty of fundraising activities such as a sponsored Bungy jump on the 14th of October and we are all at The Pattaya Trader, delighted to continue our support of this very worthwhile venture. There are also many Poppy appeal charity events to lend your support to and the PILC are already getting ready for their annual charity bazaarfor Christmas -(there I said it!) .

I should also like to personally congratulate St Andrews Green Valley on yet another sensational year with tremendous exam results. This International school really does go from strength to strength -well done to all the students and the staff .

Then as usual, as you flick through our Dining section you will find plenty of food and drink on the following pages, so if you want to put some work in to shift all those calories then you'd best get to Bear Gym where there's a great membership promotion this month.

Must get my trainers on and drop a few kilos before Christmas !

All the best

The Under the Roof Club

As you know we have been keeping you informed about The Under the Roof Club who are based here in Pattaya but have identified a real need to help one of the most isolated communities the Mae Hong Son Province in Northern Thailand.

(you can still read the full article from our website www.pattayatrader.com on our Expat Living page)

The people in these villages live in some of the most hazardous and unforgiving terrain in Northern Thailand when during the rainy season flooding can lead to extremely dangerous conditions and they become cut off from the rest of the country. Muddy, slippery mountain roads are extremely dangerous and only experienced drivers can manage to reach these villages the children especially suffer, having to travel long distances just to get a basic education.

The aim of The Under the Roof club is to raise money to build schools in the main villages and also to provide them with food, clothing, school supplies and solar panels for electricity. The Pai Border Police will be helping with the construction and distribution of all the supplies. It costs around 500,000 baht to build each school and as soon as the first 500,000 baht has been raised, the building of the first school will start.

The Under The Roof webpage undertheroof.club and further articles in The Pattaya Trader will keep everyone updated with photos of the construction progress. There will be full transparency and all donations from companies and individuals will be detailed on the undertheroof.club website.

Keep your eyes open for various fundraising events in and around Pattaya such as sponsored Bungy Jumps and fun days out

How you can help:

If you want to send food, clothing, kitchen utensils school supplies they can be dropped off at Karen Visa Services Soi 10, Theprasit road

Monetary donations can be paid into SCB Account no 0863 244 575-5

Please email: undertheroof2018@gmail.com to advise, so that they can then update the donation on their website: undertheroof.club

Thank you for your support for this great cause

THE PILC Christmas Bazaar

As the year continues to fly on by, already events at Christmas are starting to be advertised around the city. And the number 25 seems to be very popular with the Pattaya International Ladies Club (PILC) as this year they are having their 25th Christmas Bazaar on Sunday 18th November.

A real family event held annually by PILC, the ever popular Pattaya Christmas Bazaar will be celebrating its quarter of a century of providing yuletide entertainment for kids and adults alike. The auspicious venue is the Holiday Inn on Pattaya Beach Road, which is happy to host this premier fundraising event. As usual Santa will be there to cast good tidings over proceedings and bring some early Christmas cheer to all that attend.

There will be over seventy vendors selling all manner of Christmas produce that will be ideal as unique

Christmas presents or great adornments to your home decorations. While you are busy shopping for bargains your kids can go and meet Santa and whisper in his ear what they want for Christmas.

The cafe at the Hilton is a great place to meet up with friends and have a chat, perhaps even have a go on the PILC Christmas Bazaar Charity Raffle. The Raffle is famed for its great prizes and this year will be no exception, plus all the profits go to charity, so spend freely and help many great local causes.

Pattaya International Ladies Club

Pattaya International Ladies Club was founded in 1987, and from small acorns large trees grow. Today PILC has over two hundred active members that come from over thirty different countries. However, back in 1987 PILC started with just thirty members their goal to provide expatriate women with a great monthly networking meetings and the opportunity to network, make friends, have fun and socialise in a wide range of regular activities that include sports and cultural pursuits.

PILC has always had an open door policy and welcomes newcomers who have recently come to settle on the Eastern Seaboard and in particular Pattaya. This often helps wives of businessmen to settle and have their own social circles. The club also has a strong commitment to supporting local and needy communities through several welfare projects. And events such as the Christmas Bazaar enable PILC to continue its fundraising efforts and aid good causes. As well as raising much needed money, the ladies of PILC volunteer their time and services to a variety of projects that continue throughout the year.

So why not head down to the Holiday Inn Pattaya on Sunday 18th November 2018? The entrance fee is 150 baht and kids under 12 are allowed in for free. Have a great time with your family and friends whilst helping out with much needed fundraising for important local causes.

The Grape Trail

Getting Personal

Down at the village tavern a few nights ago, the conversation turned again to wine. Someone remarked that wine is a matter of personal taste and that's the end of it. Well no, not quite. It's obvious that personal taste dictates whether you like a wine or not but if you want to go beyond the simplistic "I like it" or "I don't like it" stage, personal taste is not enough. A friend of mine was puzzled when at an informal tasting I described a particular wine as "superb" but added that I didn't enjoy it. I could say much the same thing about some of Wagner's music. Mark Twain must have felt the same, because he once wrote "Wagner's music is better than it sounds". There are a few good quality wines around that I happen to dislike, but you might enjoy them enormously. It's safe to say that the "quality" of a wine and personal taste are two separate things.

So if we're talking about "quality" where do we start? In her splendid book entitled The Wine Bible, Karen MacNeil suggests that an important issue is whether the wine is true to the grape and whether it brings out the grape's essential character. Of course, it helps if you know what this "essential character" is supposed to be. Another issue is whether the various components of the taste are well-balanced. We'd need to assess how the wine presents itself through aromas and flavours and whether they're finely focused or indistinct. Some wines have a variety of fascinating smells that makes you want to sniff and taste again. Then there's that elusive quality often described as "a sense of place." In contrast, simple budget wines are mass-produced and invariably rather one-dimensional.

But these are first impressions. To explore the quality further, we need to assess things like colour, aroma, acidity, tannins, oakiness, body-weight, dryness, fruitiness and after-taste. But I can sense your eyes glazing over already, so I shall save all that for another time. Let's have a drink.

Dehesa La Granja 2008 (red), Castilla y León, Spain

Here's a good example of a "quality" wine at a reasonable price too. Let's begin by decoding the label. Dehesa la Granja is the name of the winery; 2008 is the year that the grapes were harvested and Castilla y León refers to the Spanish district of Castile and León up in the north-west bordering on Portugal. The wine is made by Alejandro Fernández who in his youth nurtured the dream of owning a winery, or bodega as they're known in Spain. Now he owns four of them and his splendid wines have earned worldwide recognition.

This is made from Tempranillo (tem-prah-NEE-yoh), a black thick-skinned grape that makes full-bodied, long-lasting wines rich in tannin. It's a dark ruby red with syrupy-looking "legs" forming inside the glass when you swirl it around. These little rivulets are called the Marangoni Effect, a complex phenomenon which I'll leave you to investigate for yourself if your interests extend to thermo-capillary convection.

The aroma is intense and inviting, packed with luscious black fruit, damson and blackberry and the tang of fresh herbs. But do give it time for all the aromas to develop. It's elegant, dry and oaky with cherry on the palate along with a hint of sweet blackberry and a firm foundation of fine tannin. The wine has a firm and satisfying body which I used to have myself thirty years ago. There's a long finish too and at 14% ABV this pleasingly assertive wine would probably show best with food. Tempranillo works well with Mexican-style food, barbecue, grilled meats or sirloin steak. If your food is slightly spicy with bright flavours, this wine will make a good partner.

For a softer mouth-feel, pour the wine into a decanter or wine jug and let it rest for about half an hour. But don't drink it too cold. Full reds usually taste best around 17-18° C (62-64° F). You can easily buy this wine online at Bt 990 from Wine Garage in Bangkok (do a Google) which specialises in fine artisan wines. You can pay by credit card or PayPal and for a modest charge they'll deliver to your front door.

Berry Estates Bin 999 Dry Red (Australia).

In contrast, here's a budget easy-drinker produced by Siam Winery, the company that makes the ubiquitous Mont Clair. This wine is dark red with quite an attractive sweetish, jammy aroma of black fruit and a faint minty smell. It's medium-bodied and fairly dry with a touch of tannin to give a sense of firmness. There's plenty of fruit on the palate and although the label gives precious little information, it's a good bet that the wine is made from Shiraz. Incidentally the expression "Bin 999" is meaningless. It's a packaging strategy to add a bit of gravitas and make it sound a bit special. The wine would go well with rich beef dishes or pasta. It sells at around Bt 400 and it's available at many supermarkets and corner stores including Family Mart. Obviously this is a mass-produced wine but it's a pleasant little glugger and I'd be happy to drink it with the pizza when the Valpolicella runs dry. But of course, that's a matter of personal taste.

CROWN OF INDIA

The Good, The Naughty and the Downright Delicious!

As it's always tempting to "fill your boots" when you're presented with such a great selection on the menu at Crown of India we decided that we would, on this occasion at least try to be good. Therefore we started with some light bites and very tasty they were too. A selection of Vegetable and Paneer (cheese) Pakora which we accompanied with a serving of Raita. This proved to be a great combo as the light taste of the raita, a yoghurt containing crunchy crisp onions (there are various options available) really worked with the chickpea batter and I have to say the Raita was tremendous value at only 80 baht. The serving was plentiful enough for two to share and even lasted into our main course, proving to be a soothing accompaniment to the curries that we had requested as hot and spicy!

Before the main course we also tried the Daal Shorba. To my mind no trip to an Indian restaurant is complete without a serving of Daal - and we all know that lentils are good for us ! Usually I order this in the form of a side dish along with the curry but again as we were going for a lighter option the Shorba (Curry flavoured lentil soup) was a delicate broth consistency. Warmed with the heat of the soup as well as its spicy flavour I was reminded of my father's favourite saying when eating Indian food "That really clears away the cobwebs" and it was true, you could almost feel the soup doing you good - especially with all the colds and flu around at the moment.

Then as we thought we'd been good enough it was time to get naughty- but not too naughty ! Please note we didn't fill up on the many options of rice and nan available but instead went for the lighter Roti to work with our Mutton Rogan Josh. This was in a ruby red, rich, creamy sauce and the mutton I'm pleased to report had been well cooked and was extremely tender. Then we shared a Chicken Tikka Butter Masala perhaps not the lowest calorific option on the menu being thick and satisfying but it was just how you want a hearty, robust curry to be.

With the defences truly down and feeling pleasantly full we still had a little room for the "Downright delicious" . Gulab Jamun a dessert that hails from the north of India but is popular throughout the country comprising of 2 deep-fried dumplings (or you could say donuts) made from dried milk [khoya] are covered in a rose-cardamom flavored sugar syrup Quite a treat !

THE KEY TO HEALTHY EATING

EAT HEALTHY

In this issue of the Pattaya Trader while we are looking at ways to save the planet and reduce our carbon footprints it is great to see a company such as Pattaya Clean Food reinforce all these great ideas with their company policy.

The company was started by Khun Nid who first had the idea for Pattaya Clean Food after being advised that she needed to lose weight due to a medical condition. Even though she tried a strict exercise programme she only lost 2 kilos and then no more. So she then decided that exercise in isolation just wouldn't do it and started looking at what she was eating. Choosing to take more care of what she was putting in her body she opted for fresh organic foods prepared into daily portions of low fat, healthy meals. Very soon on this new regime combined with her regular exercise programme after just 2 months she lost a further 16 kilos and friends and colleagues were so impressed they asked her about the secret of her success. So Khun Nid decided to share these recipes and freshly sourced foods with her friends setting up a Facebook page where they could view the recipes and order from her.

Fast forward to today and meals are available to order from as little as 80 baht (chicken and egg varieties) and 120 baht for shrimp and fish meals. It is also now possible to get these delicious options delivered to your door with 5, 6 or even 7 day meal plans available in the Central Pattaya area. Although Khun Nid also has some customers who order in bulk from her as far away as Siracha and Sattahip.

So what are you waiting for to try these delicious, healthy sets

Pattaya Personality Bappy Rahman

One of the most welcome interviews I have ever had the fortune to conduct was last week when I was despatched upstairs in Chaoyapruk Towers to interview the Sales Manager of Voova Group Mr Bappy Rahman.

I have been working alongside the jovial Bappy for two years or more and he is the sort of bubbly chatterbox you associate with good salesmen. But his amenable nature does not distract from the driven and successful businessman that I know he is.

One of the most intriguing aspects of all our Pattaya Personalities is why they came to be living in Thailand and Pattaya in particular. And it is the burning question that I am always eager to ask every one of our Personalities.

Primarily Bappy came to Thailand to attend Business Studies at Assumption University in Bangkok. It was a win win situation as he was always fond of tourism and learning about different cultures. Hailing from Bangladesh, Bappy slotted in seamlessly with his fellow students who were gathered from all over the globe.

Bappy received a Bachelor degree in International Business Management and subsequently has also gained an MBA in Hospitality and Tourism Management. Besides his studies, Bappy has had various jobs since moving to Thailand, most of which have been in the sales area of business.

I was particularly interested in why my colleague had picked to settle down in Pattaya after five years of studying and living in Bangkok. His answer was fairly predictable and the notorious Bangkok traffic was high on the list.

Similar to the author, Bappy prefers living by the sea and when the opportunity came along to work and live in Pattaya he jumped at the chance. But like many expats who have moved to Pattaya he has a love / hate relationship with the entertainment capital of Thailand.

One the plus side are the beaches, restaurants, attractions and travel infrastructure. But on the negative side of things are, bad driving, discarded rubbish, and work colleagues?

Bappy is still only twenty eight and is tremendously proud of what he has achieved in life up to now. He thoroughly enjoys what he is currently doing and being a part of the growth for the company he works for. The Pattaya Trader has given him a platform to meet a wide range of different people from all walks of life, to learn about their businesses and to network in and around Pattaya, and consequently has grown Bappy's experience.

His success has been as a consequence of his hard work and application which has given him the rewards of leading a sales team. One of the biggest driving factors is the responsibility he feels to the company and his team.

Bappy cites his MBA as being responsible for his organisation skills, although he is somewhat baffled exactly what he did learn during his university days, he is convinced they taught him the virtue of patience. Although speaking from a personal point of view I beg to differ!

Bappy was keen to impart that there are many people in Pattaya that are highly talented, but the risk of living in such a city is that there are many distractions and it is easy to go off the rails. The way to succeed is to be highly disciplined and self motivated, and to educate yourself to improve and develop your talents. His goals for the future stretch out over the next five years, by then he wants to be at a sales director level and he wants to put back all that he has experienced to help the ASEAN business community and to help his adopted homeland.

Before we concluded our interview I asked my colleague to impart a message to our readers who are thinking of taking up a business career in Thailand. His response was, Stay focused, Pattaya should have more young hustlers similar to Bangkok. Be committed and ethical, and most importantly have the willingness to do whatever it takes.

Tournament from Silky Oaks

Tommy Leads the Way to Low Gross

Jeeranan Duncan - Ladies Winner

80 players, including a small number of ladies, made the journey this month to the Barcelona Valley Complex, where we played the Silky Oaks course. Although the weather was a little overcast, and there was a light shower of rain, weather conditions were conducive to good golf. We played from the white tee markers today, some of which were well forward, making for some good scoring.

The past few months has seen outstanding performances for the tournament Player of the day, and today was no exception, with Tommy Marshall (8) scoring Low Gross with his 73, to go with the A Flight prize and approaches, on #1 & #2 to get off to a flying start. All prize winners in the A Flight broke into the 40s, with Robert Watkins (11) claiming 2nd place with 41 to go with his approach on #10, while Mika Viljakainen (9) recorded 40 points, also picking up a long drive on #17 in the <54 age group and an approach on #13.

The B flight for handicaps 13 - 19, saw another 40+ score by the winner Craig Banks (13) with 41 and a near pin on #14 while the minor placings were tightly contested, going to a countback on the last 6 holes to separate Urs Wandeler (13) and Robbie Taylor (13). Urs getting the silver 14/12, after both signed for 39 points.

The C flight had the best score of the day, with Don Smalley (21) leading the way with 44 points, with Howard Marson (21) gaining 2nd spot with a solid 41 points. Todd Fox (34) picked up the bronze medal position with 40 points after a series of countbacks saw John Fenwick and Ken Grimes eliminated.

The Ladies clear winner on 37 points was Jeeranan Duncan (18) to go with her long drive on #17.

Honorable mentions go out to Steve Truelove, Dave Stockman and Peter Park who each collected the maximum 2 technical prizes.

Dave was at it again, who with his capable staff on the BBQ, kept the attendees well satisfied with their tasty selection of tucker for the night. Next tournament on 26 September at Pattana, so get your preferred timeslot by booking with Shane on 0863720084 or through Birdie at www.birdie.in.th

The Best Moments You Will Spend In Your Life

When I was a child, my all-time favorite thing to do was go fishing. There was nothing I loved more than to sit out in a lake, or near a river, or fish a canal and wait for my line to tighten—for the fly to disappear, for the big one to strike.

The enjoyment came from the whole experience: the beautiful surroundings, sitting next to my dad, the peaceful waiting, and the thrill of the catch. I loved every aspect of it. To this day, it remains one of my favorite things to do, and I fish any chance I get. My 3 boys love it too and Jonathan at the age of 11 was the CoDown Pike Champion with a 18 LB Pike. Caught at Castleblaney (Only help I was allowed to give him was to hold on to his hoodie in case he got pulled in (What a great day that was) But you could see the smile beam when he got the fish in and the tears of achievement when he got a bigger trophy than his dad.

Here are reasons you should get your kids interested in Fishing

It Will Teach Them Patience

Unless you are fishing at a hatchery or into a barrel, you will not usually catch a fish immediately after casting the line. Sometimes you'll wait 15 minutes, sometimes half an hour, and sometimes you'll spend the whole day without even a bite. In a time where instant gratification rules, it's nice to see children accepting and understanding that they can't control the outcome when it comes to nature. They can't be all, "Where's that app that gets that fish on my hook?" And as great as it is to see their faces when their patience pays off and they hook a fish, it's just as nice to see them be OK with hearing, "Well, not today. Better luck next time."

It Will Teach Them Nature Appreciation

Fishing spots—wherever they may be—are usually beautiful and, at the very least, quaint. As a child, I found it very comforting to be in nature. I could do nothing but smile when I stood fishing, wildflowers and pine trees surrounding me, sun reflecting off the water. And nature seems to happen all around you. Squirrels chase each other up trees, all types of birds fly overhead and dragonflies hover around you. It's a wonderland for children. I learned to respect and love the outdoors. And being outdoors is good for any child.

It's 100% Quality Bonding Time

When you're in the middle of a lake on a boat, or in the middle of a forest by a river, you have relaxed, quiet time together and a perfect opportunity to bond and communicate. Some of my most memorable moments with my dad or brothers are on the bank of a river or at the end of the dock. My most special moments spent thus far with my father are times spent fishing with him; and sometimes just standing next to him in the river, casting our lines, not saying a word.

They learn that a combination of patience and reading the environment can pay off in the end.

It Will Teach Kids to Problem-Solve

Fly fishing requires that you know your environment. You must learn what kind of flies or baitfish is on the water at that time of day, and at that time of year. If the fish aren't biting, you must assess why. It was always fun for me to find out what kind of flies the fish were going after and to learn to read the rise of a feeding fish. If that sounds geeky, well, I was. A change of bait from worm to bread can make all the difference in catching silver fish

It Teaches Conservation

Fishing of any kind gives you the opportunity to teach your child about conservation. Teaching your child about the concept of catch-and-release or only taking home what you will eat helps them to understand the importance of ensuring a thriving population of fish for future generations.

It Teaches Children to Be Present

You can't help but feel alive and be present in the moment when you are connecting with nature through fishing. It's an invigorating, uplifting feeling, and you find yourself observing everything around you and taking it all in. And when that babbling brook or the rushing water of the river calls nature to be present in their junior bladders, hey—you're in nature! Go for it, Daniel Boone. Now you're really feeling alive.

It's a Hobby You Can Continue to Enjoy with Them for Life

You can fish with your children until your teeth fall out, and then you can continue to do so from the seat of your motorized Rascal. And then your children can pass down the hobby to their children, and also, they can pass it down to their rascals. You can create a fishing companion in your child and have common ground—a shared activity to enjoy for life.

It Teaches Diligence and Builds Confidence

Kids learn to not throw in the towel if they don't get a bite or reel one in the first day. They learn that a combination of patience and reading the environment can pay off in the end. From feeling the fish strike your line to setting the hook and reeling the fighting fish in is a reward to being patient, paying attention and setting things up correctly. High-five, nature!

It Helps Kids to Not Be So Squeamish

Kids will learn to worm a hook and then to remove the hook from the fish's mouth. And during times when you decide to keep and eat the fish, your kids will learn to clean the fish. Sure, you may not need these skills in everyday life, but it does put some dirt behind the ears.

Fishing is a beautifully innocent pastime, a wonderful family activity that will bring everyone closer together. Sitting in a boat with any of my boys and seeing who catches the most is brilliant and believe when I say that it warms the cockles of your heart.

Tight Lines

Technical Issues Hamper the Honda's

The Unlxx TR-Motorsport racing team were back in action on their hometown track at the Bira International Circuit on the outskirts of Pattaya for rounds 5 & 6 of the Thailand Super Series 2018.

Thomas and the Porsche 997 would sit this meeting out as the supercars that raced at Sepang in Malaysia at the start of the season will be back on track in October for the final rounds of their series.

With the Porsche safely tucked away in Bangkok it was the turn of Tony Percy and Victor Conrad Spliid Jensen to take centre stage in their respective classes.

As always the race weekend starts early with the team making the short trip from their workshop in Pattaya to the Bira Circuit on Wednesday evening. Thursday was practice day as both Tony and Victor took to the track to get feel for their cars. Regular readers will remember the issues Tony Percy had in Bang Saen at the previous meeting so all eyes were on him as he gave the Honda DC 5 a good shakedown to check if all was running smooth, and thankfully it was, not only was it running smooth but was also running fast as Tony topped the timesheets in free practice.

Victor was not far behind in the Honda Jazz as he took a credible 3rd place on the timesheets while running on older tires. With both cars running well the team were confident for both qualifying sessions on Friday.

With confidence high, the cars went out for qualifying, but once again mechanical problems plagued the team. Victor, on a new set of tires, pushed hard from the start but could not better or match his fastest time in free practice, finishing 3rd on the grid. The reason for slower times would become all too clear the following day. As for Tony, it seemed the mechanical gremlins from Bang Saen had followed him to Bira as after only a few laps his clutch completely failed, forcing him to retire.

After such high hopes, the team were left dejected and with a long night ahead as they first tried to find out the issue with the Honda Jazz and then install a new clutch in the Honda DC5 that would arrive late in the night from their supplier in Bangkok.

The young Viking Victor was the team's first race of the day, however, it was soon over, as the lights went green Victor lurched forward then pulled off the track to keep out of the way of the cars behind, when he eventually got going it was obvious that the engine was sick, he was immediately called into the pits and retired from the race. After a brief assessment of the L15 engine the decision was made to replace it with the spare, this resulted in a grid penalty which would see Victor starting from the back of the grid for Race 2.

With all the bad luck that had already befallen the team, maybe they would get some good luck in Tony's race, unfortunately the racing gods were not smiling down on the team, as once again Tony suffered a clutch failure early into the race and was forced to retire, although he did manage 7th on the grid before the failure.

The team were up bright and early on Sunday, both cars had their respective work completed and were sent out for a 10-minute test session. Tony in the Honda DC 5 was flying and with no issues reported commented that the car felt perfect. It was a similar story for Victor, although on the in-lap after stopping on the weighbridge the car failed to start again due to an electrical issue, as the team were last on the grid anyway, the decision was made to start him from the Pit-lane as a precautionary measure.

Both Tony and Victor were in a buoyant mood ahead of their races. Victor started his Race 2 from the pit lane and with the new engine made a monumental charge through the field as the young Dane finished an impressive 3rd and also set the fastest lap of the race.

Tony started Race 2 in a similar fashion taking several places at the start only to be squeezed at the first corner, he then eased off to ensure the car received no damage as there were 20 laps to go and a lot of racing ahead.

However like we have often said this season, disaster struck, just 6 laps into his race Tony lost all drive in the car and had to pull off the track. When the car was eventually towed back the pits the loss of drive was a result of a failure of the K20 engine, another disheartening DNF for Tony and the Team.

The season so far has been a rollercoaster for both Tony and Victor as when they have both been at their best they have taken several wins, podiums and fastest laps between them. The team and drivers are now resigned to the fact that their respective championships are out of their reach, therefore, attention and focus will now be aligned to the 2019 season.

The Unixx – TR-Motorsport Team will be back on the track for the final rounds of Thailand Super Series at the Chang international Circuit in Buriram to be held from the 25th to 28th October, anyone wishing to attend the races can contact the team at info@tr-motorsport.com to find out more.

The team would like to thank their gracious sponsors, Unixx Lubricants, Planet Porsche, Amber Food & Grapes, AKA Traders, SEARA Sports, Sky Marine Group, SCAN Global Logistics, Retox Group, Inspire Thailand, B-Quik Racing, Freem Thailand, PFC Brakes, MOGIT, Industrial Cutting Services, Grover Grover Tailors, BK Racing Clutch, Sports Car Racing News, Human i.t. and Thai Visa. A special thanks to all the fans and guests who came along to enjoy the weekend. MEDICAL INSURANCE

When people come and live in Thailand one of the things that is often neglected is medical insurance. In their home country they are so used to rolling up at their doctor or hospital and not having to pay anything out of their own pocket

Thailand is different. If you do not have medical insurance you will have to pay for treatment out of your own pocket. If you have neither any treatment needed will be withheld. The situation has got so bad the several of the Embassies have issued warnings about people being underinsured or not insured. I quote from the British Embassy warning of 1st February 2016:

“Based on British Embassy figures in 2015, more than 80% of British residents in Thailand over the age of 51 who received consular assistance after being hospitalised did not have medical insurance, despite the relatively common need for medical care”

Layla Slater MBE, HM Consul to Thailand said: “Thailand is one of the top tourist and retirement destinations. Medical treatment can cost thousands of pounds and returning home may not be an option for everyone.. In many cases there will be a direct financial impact on family and friends. The British Embassy endeavours to work with charitable organisations and do everything we can to help people, but we cannot pay medical bills or fly people home. That is why we encourage people to make provision for their health and medical needs when choosing to live abroad, as it is the most reliable way to ensure that costs are covered”

Whatever nationality you are it is essential that you have medical insurance. Unfortunately many people think “It will never happen to me”. However it does to a surprisingly high number of people. I have known of instances where treatment has cost over $100000. It is quite common if someone has been in an accident for the total cost to exceed $50000. When you consider that Thailand has the second highest death rates on the roads in the world and there are uninsured drivers everywhere accidents are a very common occurrence.

You can obtain local medical insurance that can work out relatively cost effective or you might want to choose full international cover which costs more but has more extensive cover.

Whatever your needs I recommend you get in touch with us as we can offer free impartial advice as well as being able to give the very best in quotes.

We can be contacted on tel 08 7831 7834 or email admin@expatfinance.org

IS YOUR MONEY SAFE?

I happened to be listening to the BBC and the story of a lawyer who had lost £180,000 which was transferred out of her account by thieves caught my attention. It really seemed unbelievable that a UK bank could allow 34 (yes thirty-four) transfers of several thousand pounds out of her account over a two day period without raising any questions.

Of course they've said that it's not the bank's fault and she can whistle for her money. I found the whole episode both incredible and worrying. My immediate thought was for our own cash and whether this was secure in the bank. Second then was the security of the bulk of our savings which are in investments.

It was this process of thinking – “are we safe” that had me thinking about what presented the best protection in this situation. It was quite interesting going through old fraud stories to see how individuals were being targeted and how they had lost money. In many cases, I guess we could say, “I wouldn't be that foolish” and perhaps we may not give someone our password over the phone.

In my wife's previous company, a UK stockbroker, they had regular fraud attempts, where an individual would contact the firm pretending to be the client asking for a withdrawal. They would go through security, provide a bank account and money was transferred. Admittedly, that was several years ago and the security was immediately improved.

Nowadays, if we wish to make a withdrawal from our investments, we have to get a call back to a previously registered phone number to verify the request. The payment can only be made to a bank account that was also agreed in advance. Changes to any of this standing data must be verified by two people and any large withdrawals must be approved by someone who knows us (the client) personally and can phone us and speak to me or my wife. This is quite involved and took a little getting used to. On one occasion, we could only make a very large withdrawal by having a cheque made out to us hand delivered. This might seem over the top, however, when reflecting on the situation with this solicitor losing £180,000 from her bank, these security measures immediately made me feel at ease.

This firm is of course regulated in the UK, they pay into the investor compensation scheme in the UK as well as having good security measures. If someone wanted to steel my money, they would have to be able to pose as me, confirm what investments had to be sold, wait for the cash to turn up and then be able to have breached the initial security to have the funds paid into an account that wasn't ours. That's not to say this could not be done, thieves do have patience and there are examples where they have written off to change addresses on pensions and taken several months to perpetrate the fraud.

Having said that, I felt reassured that I am paying my UK regulated and insured broker to manage my money, which means they also have responsibilities to keep my money safe. This includes good security measures and having to pay into the compensation scheme. He didn't really highlight the importance of these things when we invested with him, but that was really before there was so much fraud.

The upshot of all this was that I felt my investments were less risky and safer than my cash at the bank. How ironic is that?

Pattaya police to get tough on tourist vehicle rentals.

From now on Pattaya police have said that any tourist caught driving a rental vehicle without a licence will be fined up to 1000 baht. Also that the vehicle in question will be confiscated and the company that has rented said vehicle must pay another fine of up to 2000 baht when they go to collect it.

Police Major Arut Saphanon said that the reason for the change is because many tourists don't know the highway code and have not had any training which leads to accidents. Also that foreigners who commit crimes in Pattaya have been seen fleeing the scene of the crime in rented vehicles.

Tourists now need to produce an international licence, their home country driving licence and a passport when renting. They also need to carry these document to show the police if stopped - failure to do so will result in the vehicle being taken away. Expats can take their home country licence and a certified copy from their consulate or embassy in Thailand to the Department of Land Transport and get a Thai licence.

DENGUE FEVER ALERT

This year in Thailand more than 136,000 cases of dengue fever have been confirmed. In fact Sophon Mekthong, Deputy Director-General at the Ministry of Public Health recently announced “We are experiencing the highest number of cases in over 20 years,” Much of this is being attributed to the unseasonably wet and warm weather.

Dengue is transmitted by the bite of an Aedes mosquito infected with any one of the four types of dengue virus. Symptoms typically range from a mild to a high fever with severe headaches, muscle pain and rash. Deputy Director Sophon further advised “There is a misconception that dengue is a jungle disease but, actually it is more prevalent in heavily populated areas. Rapid urbanisation in Thailand and a change in weather patterns have contributed to the alarming spike in cases,”

Dengue is also difficult to recognize because the early symptoms of fever, headache, body aches are not specific. However between 3 to 7 days after the first symptoms difficult breathing, mucosal bleeding, severe abdominal pain and persistent vomiting can follow.

There is no specific treatment for dengue but early detection and access to proper medical care are crucial so if in doubt go straight to your nearest hospital to get checked.
