What is a Beach Club?

Café del Mar Pattaya offers a premium beach club experience on Thailand's eastern seaboard, with the iconic entertainments and signature touches that have taken the brand from the Mediterranean island of Ibiza to venues right around the world. It's all about first-class chillout music, high-quality snacks, outstanding cocktails, the ever-changing beachfront atmosphere, looking good and feeling better.

The Original Sunset Session is the highlight of any day at Café del Mar, and it's the perfect metaphor for a day at a beach club of this calibre. Few natural sights are so simple yet so special as a sunset. They happen every day, yet each is unique. Plus they are always better by the sea. Put a great soundtrack in the background and a fire show at the end to light up the night and you've got the makings of a great evening.

It's the feat of making the remarkable approachable that makes beach clubs special. It's a place to go to do nothing but relax and take it easy, which is made possible by the tireless efforts of the club staff. All you have to do is book a seat to be treated like royalty for the day.

You'll get the finest food and drinks brought right to your daybed, great Balearic beats played for your entertainment, a 600-square-metre infinity pool at your disposal and the sun setting into the Gulf of Thailand right in front of you. If you feel like doing anything, you have the option of lying down until the feeling passes.

There's a distinct difference between being relaxed and being lazy, though. You don't go to a beach club to be slothful and slovenly. Instead, entering Café del Mar Pattaya is like entering a trouble-free zone. Worries and hassles are not welcome because everyone is here to have a good time. It creates a unique atmosphere of fun and friendliness.

The beach club experience is not an escape from life. Instead, it's a place you go to make sure you don't miss out on life. The good things are amplified and enjoyed while the bad things are left at the door. It's about making a space to be yourself at your best and to soak up some sun and positivity. As with most things, it's best shared with good friends, but can be enjoyed alone and there's always the chance of making new friends at the club.

It's only natural that, once you arrive at Café del Mar Pattaya, you won't want to leave. Fortunately, the facilities are designed around allowing you to spend the whole day in this unique atmosphere. There are changing rooms, showers, lockers, dining options, entertainment and a vibe that evolves throughout the day, keeping things interesting and exciting well into the night.

So, book a sun lounger, daybed or cabana and come and find out for yourself what makes beach clubs so special. For more information, go to <http://www.cafedelmarpattaya.com>

Hi Everyone

Everyone I speak to is thrilled that Pattaya now has a beach club and if you haven't been to check our Cafe del Mar yet I urge you to do so as it's a great place to visit night or day. I'm personally very fond of the weekend afternoons there to just take it easy and recover after the rigors of excessive networking ! There's certainly been plenty going on in the run up to Christmas and with music festivals and more parties to look forward to let's hope we all have some energy left for New Year's Eve.

2018 has been quite a year with the inevitable ups and downs. Thank you all loyal readers for your comments and words of encouragement. So pleased you like the new look magazine and next year we shall continue working on improving our website, classifieds and Facebook groups. As ever we welcome your comments and ask that you please tell our advertisers you found them through The Trader as this will encourage them and help us continue to keep the magazine free for you.

I hope you all have a very merry Christmas and an extremely Happy new Year!

All the best

COMING TO THE SMALL SCREEN

Watership down season 1

Not the first attempt at an animated version based on the 1972 novel by Richard Adams, I remember the 1978 feature film and Art Garfunkel's song 'Bright Eyes'. This time around Sam Smith performs 'Fire on Fire' and the animation is more 3D than 2. For the younger audience this is about a group of rabbits who escape from their doomed warren and take a dangerous journey in order to find a new home. This mini-series is a co-production between the BBC and Netflix and contains four one hour episodes. With an all star cast including James McAvoy, Nicholas Hoult and John Boyega to name a few.

Diablero.

A little late for Halloween a tale about Father Ramiro Ventura who seeks out Demon hunter or Diablero Elvis Infante. Along with help of paranormal expert Nancy Gama the trio team up to fight Evil forces that could determine the fate of the human race. Based on the book by Mexican author Francisco Haghenbeck. Netflix original series produced by a Morena Films from Mexico.

Dumplin - Jennifer Aniston (Movie).

Starring Jennifer Aniston as Rosie Dickson mother of Dumplin, a young girl working in a fast-food restaurant who tries to regain her confidence by entering a local beauty contest run by her mom in order to protest. Music is supplied by country star Dolly Parton with six original songs.

Recommended Series Mad Men.

Golden oldie this one started back in 2007 and ran for seven seasons or 92 episodes up until 2015. The series starts in 1960s New York at the fictional Sterling Cooper advertising agency. We see how business is conducted and learn about the lives of the employees. It's an retrospective look into the lifestyle, moods and habits of 1960s America. As time goes on the Don Drapers character played by Jon Hamm becomes the central focus. Don is the firm's hard working creative director who hides a shady past and now likes to drink, smoke and be unfaithful to his wife. The series won many awards for its writing, acting, directing, visual style and authenticity. A total of 16 Emmys and five golden globes, regarded as one of the greatest shows ever. Those working in advertising in the 50s used the slang term Mad Men to lampoon themselves.

Thai Garden Resort cooks "green" food

The Thai Garden Resort located on the North Pattaya Road continues to improve their efforts to look for a more sustainable environment by cooking on Bio Gas without electricity. Already awarded with the Travelife Gold Award for their contributions towards the environment and a cleaner world, the hotel took their efforts to a new level and recently installed a Byogas box in the kitchens to cook the food for their daily buffets. Manufactured by German engineering and assembled by MYBIOENERGY in Thailand, the Bio Gas box is filled on a daily basis with food and garden waste. The waste would normally be collected by the garbage collector and dumped in the nature. But now it is being used and recycled to produce suitable gas for cooking purposes.

With the use of natural bacteria's the waste is fermented in the tank into clean biogas which is perfectly suitable for cooking purposes. The Bio Box system is designed to produce up to 1000 liters of clean biogas per day. The produced gas quality consists of 65% CH<sub>4</sub> and 35% CO<sub>2</sub>. After the biogas making process has taken place, the ByoBox System produces up to 40 liters of excellent liquid fertilizer per day. The fertilizer is used for the hotel's gardens and thus the ByoBox System serves an additional purpose. The ByoBox is a very safe system, which includes an overpressure valve, activated carbon filter for reducing H<sub>2</sub>S load, hydraulic mixing system, fiberglass digester tank, PVC gas storage and a feeding system. Rene Pistors the General Manager of the Thai Garden Resort is the driving force behind this project. Apart from the Green Leaf Award, the TUI Umwelt Champion Award and the most prestigious Travelife Gold Award he continues to look for affordable ways to contribute towards a sustainable environment. It is important that we look in the future and that everybody does his duties to look after our environment and even the smallest efforts will contribute towards a cleaner world. Delivering the BYOGAS installation at the Thai Garden Resort is Mr. Rudi Pafiltschek the Managing Director of MYBIOENERGY with Khun Teerachon the Chief Engineer of the hotel and Rene Pistors, the General Manager of the Thai Garden Resort. For more information please contact the Thai Garden Resort at guestservice@thaigarden.com

The menu also features a cute old 90's style interactive bedroom. An amazing amount of old classics all in one package and you won't need to locate an old Mega Drive Console. Too many games to mention but there will be Sonic the Hedgehog, Golden Axe and Streets of Rage to name a few. What we didn't have before was the online multiplayer support and shared-screen co-op and best of all a rewind feature if your old skills are a little rusty.

Super smash Brothers ultimate.

Featuring every game character used in all the smash brothers series - over 60 fighters. Cloud from Final Fantasy VII, Ryu from Street Fighter and Snake from Metal Gear Solid. New fighting stages have also been added most notably the Great Plateau tower from Breath of the wild along with one from Splatoon. All you need now are the relatives to drive crazy on Christmas day.

PATTAYA PERSONALITY ESTHER KAUFMANN OF MY OFFICE 4 TRAVEL

When I went to visit Esther Kaufmann of My Office 4 Travel I saw first hand how she is able to expertly deal with the steady stream of customers coming into her office effortlessly switching from English to German. She told me that she also speaks a little Thai, some French and has some Italian customers from the northern provinces close to the border as well of course many Swiss. As hailing originally from Switzerland Esther has been at this office address in Soi 5, Jomtien for 10 years now and prior to that was in an office in Walking street although she does see an advantage to being so near immigration.

In the past couple of years though she has noticed fewer “walkins” as the general trend for online bookings increases. However, there are still many who prefer the professional, human touch and of course Esther along with her team can help these with their flights tours hotel bookings and in fact all travel requirements. I ask if she ever gets involved with car, bike rentals etc. but she emphatically says “No” to this as she prefers to specialise in travel, which she is licenced to do rather than be a “Jack of all Trades”. So if someone does call in for hire or other services she is happy to send them on and rather help out in the areas in which she is expert.

I asked which tours are popular now and she tells me that she is currently booking many to the north of the country Chiang Mai Chiang Rai etc. When some customers come in wanting to visit the north of Thailand their preference might be for a trip including visits to area of natural beauty, to see elephants, visit temples etc. and she can easily sort out that type of holiday but also younger people may want more of the budget trip and include activities such as rock climbing - no problem. One of Esther’s own favourite places to visit is Luang Prabang in northern Laos, on the banks of the Mekong.

Vietnam trips are also getting very popular and this is again where Esther’s expertise comes in as she can put together a tailor made trip even if requiring different means of travel. Perhaps flying one way and coming back by taxi or coach? Even stopping off somewhere and breaking the return trip. She recently helped some customers with a 10 day trip and as their party included one very elderly relative had to be sure that the excursions she was recommending and booking for them were not too arduous so that the eldest member of the group could also enjoy them. What she doesn't do is simply just handout a leaflet in a "take it or leave it" style, which is the difference between herself and some other companies that just offer tours as a sideline. Esther is a professional and prefers to sit down with her customers to give them the benefit of her expertise.

While I was at her office I saw people drop by, mainly speaking German and handing over documents for her to look at: customers, she explained to me who also like to pop by for her advice.

Esther also does a great deal of charity work including much for children. She is on the board of The Hartmut & Ilse Schneider Foundation, started by the so named German couple who decided, as they had no children of their own to set up a charitable foundation. Esther is on the board and been working for the past 15 years helping to gather and hand over donations to benefit children in Thailand especially those in the isolated hill tribes The foundation has done many wonderful things in these areas. As regular readers of the Pattaya Trader will know already from the work that the "Under The Roof Club" does, in the more isolated parts of the country it is often very difficult for children to journey to school especially during rainy seasons. Boarding houses are provided for the use of boys attending school but nothing for girls so in these months traditionally the girls would have stayed at home had the foundation not sponsored boarding houses for the girls so that they too might get an education.

So, it can be seen that with her Embassy, Charity work and also her Travel Office Esther is an extremely busy lady who recently became a grandmother as well! However she still has time to give some real service, the like of which is now very difficult to find in the travel industry. For example some customers booking air fares to Europe by business class were delighted to find that for very little extra they were able to tag on a mini break to another country, something they wouldn't even have considered if Esther hadn't been there to point it out. Then a more elderly customer who no longer has a credit card came to the office to pay for his ticket with cash. Then those of us who don't have the time or inclination to scroll through all the search engines trying to be sure of the best deal possible who want a trip or travel plan tailor made to suit - Esther is the best person to turn to.

Under the Roof Club Update

After the great success of the charity day at the Xbungy Pattaya Bungy Jump centre where a selection of sponsors raised a total of 368,000 baht, we thought we would catch up with the organisers and find out where the money will be spent.

We spoke to Reza Burapa, who is currently in the far north of Thailand organising the location, permits from the government, teaching staff and having various meetings with heads of the local villages to make sure that everything is in place for the construction of the first school. As anyone who has lived in Thailand will know, its these things that take the time!

We also spoke to Pat Collins back in Pattaya, the other main organiser and driving force behind the club who is in constant touch with Reza, and he told us that the cash raised will not be released until every permit is granted, teachers are employed and all agreements are obtained from the necessary parties so that work on the first school can begin. This will ensure that the money that has been raised will be used for actual construction and building materials as the organisers want to ensure that this is where every baht goes.

As you can see by our photos in the meantime all donations of food, clothing and gifts are being immediately distributed by Reza and The Under The Roof Club volunteers who are using their own time to ensure that everything gets to the grateful recipients.

The aim of the club is to build 6 schools in 6 different villages in the far north of Thailand which become impassable at certain times of the year. To find out more read the articles on pattayatrader.com.

Pizza is a superfood?

Sergio's Pizza Factory – The Avenue Pattaya Beach Second Road

Food trends come and go as quickly as fashion trends. Everyone wants to eat what the cool kids are eating. But just like fashion, some food trends turn out to be legitimately better and appealing to a wide variety of people forever. And, just like fashion, most of these trends really aren't some new discovery but a universal truth that's been around for ages. And so it is with the trendy notion of "superfoods". According to Dictionary.com, "superfood" is defined as a nutrient-rich food considered to be especially beneficial for health and well-being.

Talk to Sergio Armenio for more than ten minutes and you'll understand why his pizza should be considered a superfood. In fact, talk to Sergio for half an hour and you'll also understand what the phrase "a passion for food" means. A few months ago Sergio quietly rebranded his Pizza Pizza franchise located at The Avenue on Pattaya Beach Second Road. The spacious restaurant re-emerged with a face lift and a new attitude. Welcome to Sergio's Pizza Factory, Pattaya's newest "go to" eatery.

Sourdough as Superfood

When I asked Sergio what made his pizza special I got a history and science lesson. Sourdough bread dates back a few thousand years BC and is made by the fermentation of natural healthy bacteria and yeast. Sourdough is low gluten, low carbohydrate and probiotic. In other words, it's good for your gut. In the early 1900s it took a long time to make any bread due to the time required for the fermentation process. The invention and use of baker's yeast to stabilize the yeast and speed up the process really kind of ruined bread as a healthy food. Fast forward to today and this trend has continued ... "we're all in a big hurry so let's eat some processed crap".

Sergio Armenio has reached back in time and created what is known as a "levito madre" or "mother yeast". He lovingly refers to his creation as "Maria", and talks about her like she is a member of his family. According to Sergio, "Maria just keeps evolving and getting better". Taste one of his pizzas and you'll understand.

A Tale of Two Pizzas

The pizza produced by Sergio's Pizza Factory is "Pizza Romana", which is a thin and crispy dough with narrow edge of crust as opposed to a "Pizza Napoli" which is a soft floppy bread with a wide band of crust around the edge. For those of us who like to grab a slice, fold it in half and work our way from the narrow end to the crust, Pizza Romana is superior in every way.

For me the two stand out pizzas at Sergio's are the Monte Mare and the Capricciosa. "Mare Monte" means you get something from the sea and something from the mountains. With garlic prawns, soppressata salami, marinated mushrooms, ham, San Marzano tomato and mozzarella; it's like a "surf-and-turf" pizza. My new favorite is the Capricciosa made with artichoke, ham, marinated mushrooms, black olives, San Marzano tomato and mozzarella. It's almost too beautiful to eat. All of Sergio's pizzas are light, crunchy and bursting with good old Italian flavors.

More than just Pizza

Sergio let me know right away that his goal is to provide an "authentic Italian experience", and that means much more than just pizza. Soups, salads, anti-pasta and of course pasta dishes populate the other side of the pizza menu. I ordered the Caesar Salad to start me off. Sergio's version of the classic Italian salad was perfectly balanced with just the right amount of parmesan cheese, salty Italian anchovies and a gorgeous poached egg on top. For a Caesar lover like me, it was spot on. When I asked him what was his best "non-pizza" dish, he brought me the Capellini Aglio Olio, the least expensive item on the menu. Perfectly al dente pasta, thinly sliced garlic that had been poached in extra virgin olive oil, real Italian parsley and just a hint of pepperoncino flakes. Simple, elegant and completely satisfying. One of the most interesting items on the menu is the Panzanotti. Imagine a calzone, which is a pizza that has been folded so that the crunchy crust is on the outside with all the gooey goodness inside. But, Sergio offers a mini hand-held version with different fillings that is deep-fried and a perfect on-the-go snack. I had one with mozzarella and tomato and another with mortadella. I could totally see myself walking down Beach Road with one of these babies wrapped in wax paper ... maybe one in each hand!

A lively vibe

From my strategic table near the big open kitchen, I could observe all the tasty creations coming out. The baked lasagna went on my list of hunger-stopping hangover cures I really must try. The Papparadelle Bolognese smelled like it was direct from Grandma's house. But, what impressed me most was the rapport Sergio seems to have with his staff. They're smiling, laughing and grooving to the cool tunes emanating from the sound system. Anyone who has ever spent time cooking knows, food just tastes better when you're having fun making it.

In fact, the atmosphere at Sergio's Pizza Factory is kind of like his pizza; light, lively and a little bit addictive. That's why I refer to this place as my new "go to" restaurant. I go there because I feel good when I leave. Isn't that how a "superfood" should make you feel?

BRAMBURI

At Bramburi German sausage, salami and in fact German food generally is a speciality. You can come for breakfast they are open from 9 a.m. until 10 p.m. and start with for example a great Omelette platter or Croissants with jam and coffee - both @ only 99 baht.

Or as I did, come at lunch time and enjoy a 99 baht Bratwurst which I had with Potato salad. and because I wanted to also try something from their Thai menu so chose some Morning Glory. Not what you would normally expect to eat with Bratwurst but I have to say it was delicious and made a spicy accompaniment to the meal. So don't worry if you are taking someone who doesn't love traditional German fare as much as you do as there are many Thai options to choose from - the Chicken Panang @ 120 baht looked particularly good.

However I am sure that the dessert menu will have something to absolutely everyone's taste with ice creams in 6 different flavours, pancakes and a whole range of amazing cakes with of course Apfelstrudel for only 99 baht.

The evenings look very lively at Bramburi with Sports being shown and great fun to be had with their many loyal followers.

Then if you love the food so much you want to take it home they can do that as well for you with for example: Salami at 85 baht per 100 grammes or Frankfurters 35 baht per 100 grammes. Also if you have an event coming up they can cater that for you through their party service.

Check their Facebook @bramburipattaya for more details or to check the page for their daily specials or phone 094 761 4828

Bramburi is at Naklua Soi 12 (right down the alley just 50 metres as you turn into the Soi) 20150 Pattaya

A White Christmas?

Last night down at the village watering hole, the subject turned to Christmas, which considering the time of year is hardly surprising. In Thailand, much of the tiresome Yuletide grind can be escaped if you can manage to ignore the squawking renditions of Jinger Ben in some of the supermarkets. Even so, it's possible you'll have Christmas dinner somewhere on the agenda, especially if you are a creature of tradition. Whether it's at a restaurant or a do-it-yourself job at home, at some point you'll have to choose the wine. So this month, I'm going to suggest some wines that you might like to try for the Christmas bash. If you're having dinner with friends or family so much the better, because you can hopefully buy a few different bottles to offer some variety.

Partnering food and wine is not as subjective as some people would have you believe. It generally boils down to this: either try to match the character of the food with that of the wine, or go for contrast, which is probably easier. This might be a bit simplistic by sommelier standards but it's good enough to get us by. The other factor of course is personal choice, because there's no point in choosing Sauvignon Blanc to drink with the turkey if you hate, loathe and detest Sauvignon Blanc.

Let's start at the very beginning - as the song goes - the pre-dinner drinks. They're intended to stimulate the appetite, so go for dry wines because sweet ones do the opposite. I've always associated Christmas with sherry. Even a whiff of the stuff evokes distant memories of Christmases of long ago in the Old Country. The name "sherry" is derived from Jerez de la Frontera, its home-town in Southern Spain. Sadly, in Britain these days, sherry is too often regarded as the preserve of dotty old country vicars and maiden aunts. In its native country it's the drink of bull-fighters. Before a traditional Christmas dinner, a cold, dry and crisp fino would be my first choice for an apéritif. Yes, cold. Being a white wine, even though it's a fortified one, dry sherry always tastes brighter, crisper and fresher when it's chilled. You can serve it straight out of the fridge, for in these parts it'll warm up all too quickly. The best dry sherry you're likely to find around here is the full-flavoured Tío Pepe (TEE-oh PEH-pay) from González Byass available at THB 1,130 at Friendship Supermarket. The cheaper Custer's Fino Sherry (THB 465) is surprisingly good value.

A good alternative to sherry is a dry white sparkler. Cheap sparklers start at around THB 800 but genuine French champagne made the traditional way starts at about THB 3,000 and widely available. Top brand names of course, are many times that figure. The dry, zesty Italian sparkler known as Prosecco (pro-SEK-oh) is a cheaper alternative and Nua Prosecco sells at around THB 500 at Friendship. If the budget is tight, Mont Clair Sparkling Brut (THB 359 at Villa) is off-dry and crisp with a surprisingly elegant flavour. Far be it from me to encourage dishonesty, but if you have guests, you can conceal the Mont Clair label by wrapping a smart white cloth around the bottle, revealing only the champagne-like foil near the top. Some people won't be able to tell it from The Real Thing and hopefully will be too polite to ask.

Smoked salmon is a popular starter, but it's tricky to find wine that goes well with it. If you want contrast, a dry white will offset the oiliness and Gewürztraminer (guh-VOORTS-trah-mee-nuh) is a classic pairing. The mail order company Wine Now Asia sells Elena Walch Gewürztraminer from the South Tyrol at just under THB 1,300. For ham-based starters, a dry Riesling (REEZ-ling) goes well and Villa stocks the delicate Lorenz Alsatian Riesling (THB 1,876). Sauvignon Blanc (SOH-vihn-yohn BLAHN) is a cheaper option and with its sharp and grassy flavours, cuts through the oily texture though some people find it a bit too acidic.

Turkey is the usual centre-piece for Christmas dinner, surrounded with herby stuffing and all the extras. If you want to keep everyone happy, choose a white wine and a red. Let's do the whites first. The Riesling and Gewürztraminer I've just mentioned both go well with turkey. Perhaps even better would be a bone-dry French Chablis (sha-BLEE) and the Louis Jadot Chablis (THB 1,950 at Villa) is excellent. The mail order wine specialist Wine Garage has Domaine Testut Chablis Vieilles Vignes (THB 1,200) which seems remarkable value. My personal choice would be for a full, dry white Burgundy such as the Louis Jadot Macon Villages at THB 1,300 (Villa). A cheaper option would be Italian Pinot Grigio (PEE-noh GREE-joh) which can stand up to rich, high-fat dishes. It's easy to find anywhere although Wine Garage offer Girlan Pinot Grigio from the South Tyrol for just THB 990.

If, like me you generally prefer red wine, light reds work well with turkey. Forget Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot which are nearly always too tannic. I'd suggest Pinot Noir (PEE-noh NWAH) from France, so any red Burgundy with its fruity, earthy qualities would make a pleasing partner for turkey or indeed any other rich-flavoured meat such as goose or duck. Wine Connection has a good selection of budget red Burgundy for under THB 1,000. If you want to push the boat out, try the splendid Louis Jadot Mercurey (THB 2,300 at Villa) which is a lovely soft, medium bodied wine from the Burgundy village (not the planet) of the same name. Surprisingly perhaps, light, fruity Beaujolais (boh-zuh-LAY) is also excellent with turkey. Wine-Now-Asia offers Joseph Drouhin Beaujolais Villages (THB 859) as well as higher quality Beaujolais from both the Moulin-a-Vent and Fleurie regions for just under THB 2,300.

So is it cheese or dessert? A sweet tawny port is a traditional partner for Christmas pudding and mince pies. Taylor Tawny Port is available at several outlets at about THB 1,400. The classic dessert wine is rich and luscious Sauternes (soh-TERN) and there are some good ones available for under THB 2,000 at Wine Now Asia including the budget Barton & Guestier Sauternes at THB 1,549. The company also has a few top-notch examples including the legendary Château d'Yquem.

Contrary to popular belief, few red wines work well with cheese, partly because the tannins clash with both the cheese and the inevitable salty cheese biscuits. It's impossible to find a single wine that will go with every cheese. But by this stage in the meal, palates will be jaded and you might be feeling as stuffed as the turkey. You could probably get away with dishing up any wines left over from the previous courses. So I shall leave the choice entirely up to you. I can't be expected to do everything, you know.

“Chestnuts Roasting Beside a Great Fish Supper”

I thought of comparing fishing in Thailand around Xmas time.... to back home in the UK but the climates are so different I gave up writing about that. Instead I decided to investigate the care Thai people take, when catching and restocking their lakes, as “Winter Time” is probably the best time to fish in the lakes that populate this great country

“In the time of King Ramkhamhaeng the Great, this land of Sukhothai is thriving. There is fish in the water and rice in the fields.”

Thai historians claim these are the words of King Ramkhamhaeng the Great, ruler of the Sukhothai Kingdom from 1279–1298 and creator of the Thai alphabet, describing his lands during his reign. The mention of plentiful fish, as a way of portraying a nation that is at peace and thriving, shows how important fish have always been to the Thais as a source of food and a symbol of a settled civilisation. People, who live in a land where both fish and rice are abundant, will never go hungry.

Of course, fish have long been a source of protein in Southeast Asia. After all, this is a lush region fed by great rivers that wind their way across fertile plains, so fish have always been plentiful. Freshwater fish of many different species are easily caught in the streams and canals. During the wet season, when fish spawn and when waters are high, they can even be found swimming in flooded fields along with other nutritious treats; such as, crabs and molluscs. To make the most of this bounty, Thai people used to dig ponds to trap and raise fish that were washed in by the floods. This is the source of the Thai proverb, Khut Bo Lo Pla or “Dig a Pond and Lure Fish”, that now describes someone who is benefitting by deception.

Breeding in the floodwaters and so easily caught, these fish are regarded as having been given freely by nature to nurture the people. This means that killing them for food isn’t seen as taking a life in the same way as eating other animals would be – an important distinction in a Buddhist country like Thailand. Sometimes fish stranded by floodwaters are released back into the rivers as a way of making merit and many urban Thais who don’t work the fields will buy fish at temples to release which gives them a connection to their rural roots.

Over December, January and February fish are at their best after months of feeding in the nutrient-rich waters. This is the time of year when farmers are harvesting the new rice crop, so food is more abundant than ever – hence the Thai saying, Khao Mai Pla Man or “New Rice Fat Fish” to mean that everything is just perfect. Although these days the phrase is mostly used to describe newlyweds in early months of marriage.

Any remaining fish from the rainy season is traditionally dried or salted for the rest of the year. These techniques of preserving fish contributed to the unique flavours and textures that make up many popular Thai dishes and snacks – shrimp paste, dried squid and the tiny dried prawns that go into dishes like Phat Thai.

If you’re one of those unlucky souls who’s susceptible to seasickness you’ll probably prefer to do your fishing on land and luckily Thailand has many freshwater lakes that have been stocked to attract sports fishermen. In fact, Thailand can boast some of the world’s largest species of freshwater fish including Giant Catfish, Siamese Carp, Barramundi and the great predator, the Giant Snakehead. Records for big catches are regularly broken in the kingdom, with anglers reeling in some monster fish.

There are lakes up and down the country offering specialised fishing packages including tackle, lures, bait and transport. Some anglers may stay for several days, and rent floating bungalows, so that they are never far from the rod and reel action. The growing popularity of freshwater fishing has led to a surge in aquaculture and fish farming, it is hoped that this will ensure the long-term survival of many threatened species.

Brake Issues Ends 2018 Championship Challenge for Unixx – TR Motorsport

“Motor racing is like one big family, ultimately, and when you come back to it, that’s really what it feels like.”- Mario Andretti

The season finale of the 2018 Thailand Super Series was held at the Chang International Circuit Buriram on the 27th and 28th of October. After dropping points in previous rounds due to a pit stop infringement, the team found themselves 16.5 points behind championship leader Alif Hadam, however, they were still in confident mood as a maximum of 60 points was still available. For the finale, New Zealander Shaun Varney would once again co-drive the Porsche 911 with team owner and #1 driver Thomas Raldorf.

Practice

As always the team and car arrived early in the week to begin preparations. The Porsche was in fine form as Thomas clocked his fastest ever time of 1:39.1 around the 4.55km circuit during the first practice session of the week. During the next sessions, both Thomas and Shaun tried out different setups to get the best out of the car before qualifying.

Qualifying

Qualifying did not go as planned as the initial tweaks to the setup in practice had worked but a driving error from Thomas and slower traffic hindering Shaun’s flying laps put them on the back foot. Thomas clocked a 1:39.6 in his session while the young Kiwi was just fractionally faster with a 1:39.5 putting them both in 6th place for Race One and Race Two respectively, while Championship leader Alif was up to the grid in 2nd place with a 1:38.2.

Race One

It was a confusing climax to Race One for the Unixx TR-Motorsport team who were left waiting anxiously for several hours after the checkered flag had fallen to hear the official result. Then a trip to the steward’s room along with six other teams to try and explain the infringements relating to the compulsory Pit Stops. After a disappointing qualifying the team were in a despondent mood but as the race neared they were aware that anything can happen in Motorsport and usually does, and how right they would be. Shaun Varney had the challenge of fighting through the pack from 17th in stint one, and as the lights went green he quickly set about the task overtaking several cars on the opening laps. As the pit window grew closer the Porsche started to have brake issues forcing Shaun to ease off and when he eventually pitted, the team were 5th in class and 15th overall. The driver changeover was one of the quickest the team had ever done, but the nervous pit crew suspected it may have been too quick....

Thomas took control for stint two and even with the brakes failing he made his customary Viking charge through the field. Incidents ahead helped the team’s cause as one of the leading Toyotas went off into the wall ending his race while the other Toyota suffered engine issues pushing them back down the field. With only a few minutes of the one hour race to go Thomas was now up to an impressive 3rd in class and 10th overall, however, the timing screens showed investigations were underway on several teams for pit stop infringements.

Thomas made no further improvements to his position and finished 3rd in class and 10th overall. The team celebrated the great effort both drivers had put in and set about analyzing the pit stop to see if they had released the car too early. Thomas was then called ominously to the stewards and after an agonizing few minutes returned with the news that the team had released the car six seconds too early resulting in a 36 second penalty. However due to some cars being over one lap down, other teams receiving similar penalties and the number 15 car being disqualified for pitting under a safety car, the team emerged unscathed and even made up one further place to finish 2nd in class and 9th overall.

As Thomas explained what had happened the expressions on the teams faces quickly changed from agony to ecstasy! The deficit to the championship leader was now cut to just 9 points with all to play for in Race Two.

Race Two

After the positive result in Race One, the team were confident of mounting a serious challenge for the title in Sunday's Season Finale, unfortunately, it wasn't to be.... Thomas took control of the 911 for stint one and got off to a perfect start overtaking 4 cars on the opening lap of the one hour race. With Championship leader Alif going well further up the field Thomas maintained his charge and quickly closed down Porsche Academy driver Will Bamber in the B-Quik Porsche. Both drivers jostled for position for several laps until Thomas found an opening and swept past the young Kiwi and hastened his pursuit of another B-Quik Porsche a few seconds ahead.

Shortly after the pit window opened the B-Quik Racing Team brought four of their cars in for the driver changeover, Thomas stayed out for the next few laps then pitted with the car in a great position for the second stint. The pit crew did an outstanding job with a smooth driver transition and tire change. Kiwi Shaun Varney raced down the pit lane but radioed back that there was an issue with the gears. He didn't hesitate and drew on his experience and knowledge of the German sports car by pulling over on the back straight, shutting down the car and initiating a full restart that thankfully reset the gears unfortunately now at the back of the field with a mountain to climb. A safety car period helped the team's cause as Shaun quickly caught up but then with just 3 minutes to go the right front brake caliper failed at turn 12 sending the Porsche into the gravel trap and just like that the season was over....

Though the team failed to finish race they did end up in 2nd place for the driver's championship. Congratulations from everyone at Unixx – TR Motorsport to Alif Hamdan on securing the driver's title, Alif has shown great consistency throughout the season and is a deserved winner.

Thomas Raldorf team owner of Unixx TR-Motorsport

PAGS Tournament from Treasure Hill

Course Tests Golfers

Stephen Hughes (13) - A Flight Winner

Another day dawned and golfers descended en masse on the well maintained Treasure Hill course for the October PAGS tournament. Today's field of 95 players which included 6 Ladies was testament to the popularity and value this course represents. Greens were running true, and there must have been some recent rain as this course always plays a little long.

The course provided its usual strong challenge. With no men scoring 40 points or above, Butsaya Chummong (27) from the Ladies having the best score of the day, with 41 points.

Tommy Marshall (6) continued his recent good form, winning the Low Gross with a solid, if unspectacular 81, just edging Peter Park on countback 38/39 on the back 9.

Stephen Hughes (13) with his score of 37 points was good enough to pick up top spot in the A Flight (0 – 13), clearly ahead of Paul Durkan (8) who signed for 35 points, while also picking up technical prizes on holes 2 and 8. Hannu Simonen (13) occupied the low spot on the podium, with his 34 points.

The B Flight (14 – 20) was a hotly contested division with countbacks required to separate all placegetters, after they all signed for 38 points. Glenn Armistead (18) got the best of Seppo Kontio (19) and Donal McGuigan (20) after the Back 9 points were 23, 22 and 16 respectively.

Another headlining score of the day went to the C flight (21+) winner, Erkki Pohja (23) with a fine 39 points, to be the highest points scorer for the Men. John Fenwick (21) picked up 2nd spot with his 37 points, while the bronze position with 36 points went to Martin Wyss (37)

Again this month I will throw out a few honorable mentions, to Andre Coetzee, Pete Condict, Howard Marson, Martin Cooke, and Kevyn Wright who each picked up the maximum 2 technical prizes, well done to all.

Dave and his team once again did a tip top job in the tucker department, with plenty of non golfers coming along to enjoy the social atmosphere of the evening with their golfing partners, family & friends. As always, there is only 1 person to blame if you go home hungry from Hemingways after a PAGS presentation.

I look forward to next month's event at Pattavia on 28 November, as I am sure all who have experienced the PAGS organisation and hospitality do. Contact Shane on 0859459689, through Facebook, or birdie.in.th for your preferred time slot.

Erkki Pohja (23) - C Flight Winner

Museums at Christmas

The idea of going back to the UK for Christmas may be a daunting prospect. Financially draining and then there's the climate to boot. However, there is one sure way of keeping your wallets and core temperatures happy – visit the numerous free exhibitions around London.

Tristan Hunt now director of the V&A and ex MP has made a pledge to ensure that the numerous museums around town like: The V&A, the Tate Modern and the National Gallery remain free.

Hunt has proposed that London have a 'hotel tax' similar to countries like France and Spain. Whereby tourists staying in hotels in the capital pay a tax which supplements the culture of the city, thereby insuring that London museums stay free for UK citizens.

Now how you feel about this proposal one way or another I'm not sure but for me, it just made me realise what a joy it is that these great features of the city are gratis – so make while the irons hot!

London is beyond question an expensive place to hang your hat and the museums offer a rest-bite from the cold and from the expense! Walking around the city you're sure to find a number of exhibitions ranging from high culture to the bizarre!

If you find yourself doing a bit of Christmas shopping in the Oxford Street area why not pop in to the Halycon Gallery where they are currently exhibiting a number of drawings by the legendary Bob Dylan.

Or if you're more of a night owl but don't fancy paying the exorbitant beer prices (Thailand has the edge there I'm sure you'd agree). Check in the local paper and see what museums are offering a free 'late' event. 'Lates' started at the National History Museum but the concept has now been taken on by the Tate Modern and Britain. Running intermittently throughout the Month at late events tourists can see the museum after hours, ensuring a reduction in the amount of school children and usually with alcoholic refreshments near to hand. I thoroughly recommend the National History Museum late, seeing Hope, the Blue Whale that has taken over from Dippy in the grand-foyer at the museum is a great spectacle!

RADIO 96FM + KISS 91.75

'IT'S CHRISTMAS', shouts Noddy Holder of Slade very loudly just in case you didn't know that the festive season is upon us once again. Therefore, over the next few weeks, 96FM will be gradually feeding in a pot pourri of songs with a yuletide flavor from 'Winter Wonderland' to that popular Bing Crosby song. However, only in the week of Christmas will the expected tunes be played with the rest of the month being taken up with the not so often heard Christmas songs of yesteryear plus a few modern pastiches such as a fake Eminem version of Jingle Bells and a rocked up Sled Zeppelin. It's all in keeping with the fun upbeat policy of Pattaya People Radio on 96FM keeping everyone happy, those who love Christmas....and those who don't.

In the meantime, over in our other studio, Kiss 91.75 will be entertaining a younger element with an alternative style of music and promoting their new baseball hats, mugs and upcoming roadshows.

This means that the two Pattaya People Radio medias will cover a much larger spectrum of listeners providing a bigger stage for advertisers. Also essential Ex Pat information and events will be covered more widely.

The weekly 96FM schedule is:

8am to 12 noon – Morning Glory with Barry Upton

12 noon to 2pm – Let's Do Lunch with DJ Johnny P.

2pm to 4pm – Afternoon Delight with DJ D.M.

4pm to 6pm – The Sundowner Show with Barry Upton

6pm to 6.20pm – Thai News

6.20pm to 8am – All Night Long

MSN International News in English is at 12 noon, 2pm, 4pm & 8pm

All through the weekend, a full service of entertainment can be accessed.

The Thai National Anthem is always respectfully played at 8am and 6pm everyday.

A mixture of commercial fun pop music can be heard 'all day and all of the night' under the banner 'Sunshine Hits on 96'. The music policy, as programmed by station production manager/presenter Barry Upton, who has a wealth of experience in all areas of the music business, is a healthy combination of classic oldies from the 50s, 60s, 70s and 80s, together with a splattering of the best of more recent hits including some Country Rock gems and the best of recently produced creative fun 'Mash Ups'.

RETIRE IN THAILAND BY SUCCESS VISA

Retire in Thailand: Why retire in Thailand?

Thailand is one of the best places in the world to visit on holiday. It is a great holiday destination as the country has beautiful islands with white, sandy beaches and crystal clear blue water and then lush, green mountains that offer the perfect elements of exotic beauty coupled with warm and pleasant weather. In fact, many who travel to Thailand fall in love with the country and wish to retire here later in their lives.

In addition to its natural beauty, it also has considerable advantages for those looking for a quiet and comforting retirement; Thai people are famous for their hospitality, and the overall cost of living is quite low, meaning that you can maintain a comfortable lifestyle without a lot of money.

For these reasons, if you are considering retiring in Thailand, you ought to speak with the friendly lawyer at TILA LEGAL about Thailand's retirement visa.

Retire in Thailand: How to apply for Thailand's retirement visa?

The Thai retirement visa is available to anyone aged 50 years or older who has the financial means to retire in Thailand. The visa itself is good for as long as a year, and the holder of the Thai retirement visa is allowed to enter or leave the country as often as he likes during the duration of the visa. While you are a resident, you must report to the nearest department of immigration every 90 days to complete the 90 days report. This document lets the authorities know where you are living and ensures that you are safe in that location. If you wish to renew your Thai retirement visa, you may do so one week before the expiration date of your current visa.

To be eligible for the Thai retirement visa, you must have a Thai bank account and a statement which proves that you have had a balance of at least 800,000 THB 2 months before your apply for the Thailand retirement visa. Conversely, you are also eligible if you have a pension of at least 65,000 THB per month. However, if you wish to retire in Thailand, but lack these financial requirements, we can help to find an agreeable arrangement although in addition, you must first have a Thai non-immigrant visa as well.

If you do decide to retire in Thailand, please consult the lists below. There are two options, dependent upon whether you are currently living in Thailand or in your home country. Both are incredibly easy, and at Success Visa, we will ensure that the entire process is quick and runs smoothly for you.

Retire in Thailand: Requirements

- Age 50 years or older.
- Thai bank account with a balance of at least 800,000 THB or a pension
- of 65,000 THB or a combination of both (see below).

Financial Requirements for Thailand Retirement Visa

1. Bank account showing THB 800,000 or
2. Monthly pension of at least THB 65,000
3. Combination (bank account + monthly pension x 12 = 800,000)

Need a New Retirement Visa or Renewal Process?

Success visa has a fully legal service to take all the worry out of renewing or acquiring your Thai Retirement Visa.

Retirement Visa: What is Qualifications?

- 1) Applicant must be 50 years of age or over.
- 2) Must not have any criminal history and can travel to Thailand.

MEDICAL INSURANCE

When people come and live in Thailand one of the things that is often neglected is medical insurance. In their home country they are so used to rolling up at their doctor or hospital and not having to pay anything out of their own pocket

Thailand is different. If you do not have medical insurance you will have to pay for treatment out of your own pocket. If you have neither any treatment needed will be withheld. The situation has got so bad the several of the Embassies have issued warnings about people being underinsured or not insured. I quote from the British Embassy warning of 1st February 2016:

“Based on British Embassy figures in 2015, more than 80% of British residents in Thailand over the age of 51 who received consular assistance after being hospitalised did not have medical insurance, despite the relatively common need for medical care”

Layla Slater MBE, HM Consul to Thailand said: “Thailand is one of the top tourist and retirement destinations. Medical treatment can cost thousands of pounds and returning home may not be an option for everyone.. In many cases there will be a direct financial impact on family and friends. The British Embassy endeavours to work with charitable organisations and do everything we can to help people, but we cannot pay medical bills or fly people home. That is why we encourage people to make provision for their health and medical needs when choosing to live abroad, as it is the most reliable way to ensure that costs are covered”

Whatever nationality you are it is essential that you have medical insurance. Unfortunately many people think “It will never happen to me”. However it does to a surprisingly high number of people. I have known of instances where treatment has cost over $100000. It is quite common if someone has been in an accident for the total cost to exceed $50000. When you consider that Thailand has the second highest death rates on the roads in the world and there are uninsured drivers everywhere accidents are a very common occurrence.

You can obtain local medical insurance that can work out relatively cost effective or you might want to choose full international cover which costs more but has more extensive cover.

Whatever your needs I recommend you get in touch with us as we can offer free impartial advice as well as being able to give the very best in quotes.

We can be contacted on tel 08 7831 7834 or email admin@expatfinance.org

Deportation in Thailand

Deportation is the lawful expulsion from a country of a foreign national or a group of foreign nationals whose presence is unlawful or prejudicial. What is the difference between Deportation and Blacklisting? Blacklisting means that aside from expulsion, you are also barred from visiting Thailand for the rest of your life. Deportation has a shorter effective period than blacklisting; you can go back to Thailand after the expiration or withdrawal of the deportation order.

In case there is an order of deportation, the competent official may order the foreigner to stay at any prescribed place or he may order the alien to report to him according to a prescribed date, time, and place with Security or with Security and Bond while waiting for the foreigner to be deported. The competent official may also detain the foreigner at any given place as necessary. The most common reason for deportation is overstaying one's visa. Other reasons include the following:

The foreigner is deemed a threat to national security.

The foreigner is a fugitive or an individual who is on the run from the law. The foreigner has insufficient documentation or authorization for traveling to Thailand.

Overstaying is the act of staying in Thailand beyond the given period of permission to stay on your visa. It is your sole responsibility to leave Thailand or extend your visa.

If a local police office catches you with an overstayed visa, you will be transported to Bangkok for processing and charge you with overstay. Immigration may hold you for 48 hours for investigation and may be extended to 7 days, if needed. The court must approve any detention longer than 7 days. Therefore, you are more likely to appear before a judge within 7 days after being arrested.

The court will then issue a court order to deport. Once you have a tentative date of repatriation, you or your representative will have to arrange to get a ticket to leave Thailand and return to your country. You will also need to settle the fee for your transportation to the airport.

The expense of deportation shall be charged to the owner or person in charge of the conveyance, which brought the foreigner into the Kingdom. If there appears to be no owner or person in charge of the conveyance, the foreigner committing the act will have to pay the expense of deportation.

In the airport, you shall be accompanied by a police officer who holds your passport, check you in and accompany you through immigration up to the airplane 15 minutes before your flight.

You should try to resolve this problem as soon as possible if you find yourself overstaying. It is best to report to the Thai immigration office and explain your situation, pay the appropriate fines and face the consequences.

Warning of overstay

The aliens overstaying in the Kingdom of Thailand for a long period will be banned from re-entering the country as follows ;

In case of alien surrendering to the authorities

Period of overstay	Period of banning from re-entering the country (starting from the departure date)
more than 90 days	1 year
more than 1 year	3 years
more than 3 years	5 years
more than 5 years	10 years

In case of alien being arrested and prosecuted

Period of overstay	Period of banning from re-entering the country (starting from the departure date)
less than 1 year	5 years
more than 1 year	10 years

British Embassy Bangkok and Ministry of Social Development & Human Security collaborate to improve handling of child protection and abduction

The Child Safeguarding in Thailand conference was held at the Sivatel Bangkok Hotel its aim to enhance the understanding of how UK and Thai officials can support each other to safeguard British children in Thailand. Training will develop the skills of social workers, with 2 UK qualified and registered social workers travelling to Bangkok to facilitate the training. They will focus on sharing best practice; legislative frameworks and operational protocols. Other key participants at the conference: Thai Social Services, End Child Prostitution and Trafficking (ECPAT)*

ECPAT is a children's rights organisation that works with other children's rights organisation, anti-trafficking NGOs, child protection agencies, communities and governments to protect children from trafficking and transnational exploitation. They support children everywhere to uphold their rights and to live a life free from abuse and exploitation. They also lobby governments to improve legislation, policy and practice to protect children; prevent child trafficking; and implement tougher action against those who abuse children.

International Social Services (ISS), Childline Thailand and university professors responsible for training undergraduate social workers. In the long-term, the anticipated result is for training to be expanded across regional offices in Thailand to enhance safeguarding operations. Childline provides services for any child under the age of 18. The foundation works with various governments and NGOs to safeguard the rights of every child as outlined by the United Nations' Convention on the Rights of a Child. Childline operates their own helplines for children in need who need direct assistance in comfort, help and emotional support immediately.

Deputy Head of Mission for the British Embassy Bangkok, Ms Margaret Tongue, said:

"At the British Embassy, our responsibility is to ensure the safety of all British and dual national children. Every year the Consular team in Bangkok deal with nearly 50 child safeguarding cases and respond to over 1500 consular case per year, many of these include child safeguarding elements to them. The Child Safeguarding in Thailand Conference seeks to build on collaboration with Thai Social Services. We hope to enhance understanding of how UK and Thai officials can work together to safeguard children in Thailand."

Director of Social Assistance Centre, Ms Darunee Manussavanish, said:

"The professional collaboration between the British Embassy Bangkok and Social Assistance Centre is a successful partnership put into practice for our child safeguarding operation. The Embassy and Social Assistance Centre have organise monthly multi-disciplinary case conferences to achieve the 'Best Interest of the Child' principle. As the Director of Social Assistance Centre, I insist that we apply the Thai Child Protection Act 2003 as well as The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child in all cases, together with the child-centre principle."

Over 1 million British people travel to Thailand each year, with over 60,000 living as expatriates on a long term basis. According to an independent report commissioned by the UK government, Thailand is ranked in the top ten for child safeguarding cases. The UK government defines child safeguarding as protecting British children from harm, mitigating risks, supporting psychosocial development and ensuring that the child grows up with dignity. Since 2016, there have been 132 child-related cases at the Consular department of the British Embassy Bangkok: 30 cases were of a complex nature requiring long-term assistance. Of these cases, 85 cases related to child abuse and 24 cases related to international parental child abduction.

Pattaya police to get tough on tourist vehicle rentals.

From now on Pattaya police have said that any tourist caught driving a rental vehicle without a licence will be fined up to 1000 baht. Also that the vehicle in question will be confiscated and the company that has rented said vehicle must pay another fine of up to 2000 baht when they go to collect it.

Police Major Arut Saphanon said that the reason for the change is because many tourists don't know the highway code and have not had any training which leads to accidents. Also that foreigners who commit crimes in Pattaya have been seen fleeing the scene of the crime in rented vehicles.

Tourists now need to produce an international licence, their home country driving licence and a passport when renting. They also need to carry these document to show the police if stopped - failure to do so will result in the vehicle being taken away. Expats can take their home country licence and a certified copy from their consulate or embassy in Thailand to the Department of Land Transport and get a Thai licence.
