This Month in Discover Pattaya

Merry Christmas Everyone,

As you can see, we're unashamedly festive this issue, and if you're still not sure where to go over the holidays, we have plenty of ideas for you in the following pages. Pattaya's best hotels are really pulling out all the stops, and there are some excellent restaurants tempting us all with delicious, culinary treats. If all that sounds like an excuse to overindulge, then turn to page 23, where you'll find a Buy One, Get One Free offer for Vitamin Detox Drips when you mention our article.

The stylish team at Tara Decor share wonderful Christmas decorating tips, and in our Easy Living section you'll find plenty of gift ideas if you need a little inspiration. I recently kicked off my own Christmas shopping with a visit to the Pattaya International Ladies' Christmas Market, and on 10th December St Andrews International School Green Valley will host their Christmas Fair—sure to be a magical event where you can pick up last-minute presents while listening to the children sing. Speaking of which, I was nearly moved to tears by an impromptu rendition of Jingle Bells performed just for me by the children of HHNT when I went to interview the indomitable Khun Toy. There really is nothing quite like seeing the excitement on young faces at this time of year.

However you're spending your December, all of us at Discover Pattaya and Pattaya Trader wish you a wonderful Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

VERY FINE DINING INDEED AT KLIFF BEACH CLUB

If you're looking for something a little more relaxed during this festive season, the Kliff Beach Club, with its stunning sea views, offers a stylish escape.

Nestled on a cliff above a secluded beach in Pratumnak, it exudes a laid-back daytime vibe that's perfect for lounging and soaking up the sea breeze. As the sun sets, the atmosphere transforms into something more vibrant, with live music and DJs performing on select evenings.

Recently, Discover Pattaya was delighted to attend a special tasting event showcasing the Kliff's new menu, featuring an inspired mix of Thai and Mediterranean cuisine.

Many of the dishes draw on the local flavours of Pattaya and its coastal surroundings, with highlights including fresh seafood, grilled tiger prawns, and delicious oysters.

Locals will know that squid is one of the region's most common ingredients—the green lights you see on the horizon after dark belong to squid fishermen luring their catch to the surface. What's less well known, however, is that the squid ink is often left unused. The Kliff's creative inclusion of Squid Ink Crispy Rice Crackers is a wonderful way to give new life to this overlooked ingredient.

For meat lovers, the menu offered an indulgent selection: Angus beef flash-fried for just 10 seconds, grilled beef cheek with spaghetti, mouthwatering barbecue, and succulent sausage. An unexpected standout was a chicken wrap—quite possibly the most delicious I've ever tasted! Teriyaki appetisers, decadent desserts, and inventive cocktails freshly mixed at the bar rounded out an impressive culinary experience.

With so much to enjoy in its chic seaside setting, the Kliff Beach Club is an ideal choice for those who want to combine quality dining with a stylish, relaxed atmosphere. And to make things even more tempting, they're currently offering a 10% discount on their menu until December 23rd—so be sure to book early to avoid disappointment.

NICHA CLINIC IV VITAMIN DRIPS

By Gloria Jones

Why go for an IV drip rather than just take vitamin supplements? I hear you ask the question and I'm going to answer it.

The reason is because IV vitamin drips deliver essential nutrients directly into the bloodstream. Unlike vitamin tablets, they bypass the digestive system which makes for faster absorption. So taking vitamins by using a drip, can enhance your energy level, replenish hydration, boost immunity, and support overall wellness far more efficiently than oral supplements. IV drips can also improve mental clarity, reduce fatigue, aid recovery from illness, stress, or intense physical activity, even promoting skin health by bringing targeted support.

Dr Nicha offers IV drips at her clinic in Pattaya and for readers of this article there is an even better reason to go there to try them. Usually 3,000 baht if you mention this article in Discover Pattaya Magazine or on our Pattaya Trader Social media, you will be able to Buy 1 Get 1 free on either Liver Detox, Immunity or Skin Brightening Drips.

Immunity Drip: There are many important vitamins, but one of the most essential is Vitamin C—it's the primary fuel for your white blood cells. These cells act as the soldiers of your body. The more white blood cells you have, the better your body can defend itself against illness.

Liver Detox Drip: The two key components in this drip are B-Complex, which helps reduce hangovers, and Glutathione, which supports and enhances your body's natural detoxification process.

Recently I saw Dr Nicha give a talk to the Pattaya City Expats Club. The meeting was packed and members praised her for the comprehensive information she gave about wellness, anti aging, longevity and the things we all care about as we get older. At her clinic in Pattaya She also looks after all her clients in a truly holistic way, she doesn't simply treat external factors but will also ask them about their lifestyle, any issues, complaints or problems they may have and their general level of fitness.

For those of us who perhaps like to drink too much at this Festive time of the year, especially wine, beer and spirits, it's important to note that alcohol can diminish the body's levels of Vitamin B which is a key vitamin to aiding the function of the liver. Therefore having a Liver Detox IV Drip, is a great idea if you know that you've partied too hard or want to prepare in advance for Christmas and New year's parties!

The Immunity Drip is also a great idea. Especially for those travelling. I recently tried this just before a recent visit to the UK when I can tell you many of my friends and family were suffering from colds. All around me were coughing and sneezing but I didn't catch any of their germs, and returned back to Pattaya in excellent health - so for me the extra boost of vitamins was certainly worthwhile.

IV vitamin therapy provides a convenient and effective way to optimize health and vitality so If you would like any further information or want to book an appointment to take advantage of this special.

End the Year with Peace of Mind

Because caring for tomorrow is one of the most beautiful gifts you can offer for this end of year.

As the year draws to a close, many of us take time to reflect, to review what still needs to be done, and how we can make life a little easier and lighter for ourselves and for those we love.

We schedule medical check-ups, renew our insurance, and maybe even change our phone plan or declutter our homes. It's the season of resolutions, the quiet effort to regain control over the small things that make life flow more smoothly.

But beyond the practical to-do list, there's another kind of preparation : one that speaks to peace of mind.

Lightening the mental load

We live in a decade where mental overload has become one of the biggest challenges of modern life. From managing finances to caring for children or aging parents, we often find ourselves carrying invisible responsibilities that slowly weigh us down.

As we grow older and wiser, we start craving simplicity. We want life to be organized, smooth, and secure, especially when unexpected events occur.

At AMAR International, we see this every day. Families dealing with the sudden loss of a loved one, feeling overwhelmed not only by grief but also by the maze of logistics that follows : paperwork, international procedures, ceremonies, and all the decisions that must be made under shock and pressure.

Anticipating when tomorrow happens too soon

The truth is, death can happen in a blink of an eye. And while it's never easy to think about, taking the time to prepare is not an act of fear or superstition, but an act of love.

True serenity doesn't come from avoiding difficult topics. It comes from facing them with love, foresight, and communication.

That's why AMAR International offers its funeral preplanning service. It's a way to make thoughtful arrangements in advance, ensuring that your wishes are respected and that your loved ones are not left facing endless choices and stress in their most fragile moment.

Just as you would schedule a medical check-up or renew an insurance plan, organizing your funeral plan is one of those practical things that can bring immense emotional relief both for yourself and for your family. Because when everything is clear, transparent, and planned ahead, grief can remain what it's meant to be, a moment of remembrance, not administration.

Thinking about a new way to gain serenity

The end of the year often inspires us to improve, protect, and refocus on what truly matters. For AMAR International, a family-run, international funeral company based in Bangkok, this is more than a service.

It's part of a broader mission : to transform crisis management into human accompaniment, guiding families from shock to serenity with professionalism, compassion, and dignity. As the company continues to expand its support network dedicated to elder care and medical coordination, one message remains constant : helping families find peace of mind in every stage of life.

So, as you make your resolutions this year, consider adding one more to your list : take care today for tomorrow.

Gloria Speaks to Khun Toy

I am using the term Patriot for a series of articles to feature in the magazine. Firstly because I love the alliteration, and secondly because I wanted a word to describe some very special people who live amongst us here in Pattaya. Sometimes given a military connotation, the word patriot actually describes someone who deeply loves, supports and defends their country (or, for the purposes of this article, their city). They often demonstrate loyalty through service, sacrifice, and civic engagement. True patriotism goes beyond mere pride—it involves striving to make improvements for all, for freedom, and for progress. If you missed any of the earlier Pattaya Patriots articles you can still find them online at our website pattayatrader.com.

I personally believe that Christmas isn't Christmas in Pattaya until the children of the HHNFT (Human Help Network Foundation Thailand) sing at the Rotary Club Eastern Seaboard's annual party. Even before I met Khun Toy, I had always been impressed at how well the children sang the carols both in English and Thai. The beautiful outfits they wore and most importantly their wonderful smiles especially during "Jingle Bells". It is for that very reason that I waited until our December issue to write about Khun Toy because I have always thought of her as being a "Mother Christmas" to the hundreds of children she has helped and is still continuing to help.

This September Khun Toy (Ratchada Chomjinda) who is the Director of HHNFT, celebrated her 70th birthday! For many of these years she has worked tirelessly for charitable foundations, 18 of them at HHNFT. Her excellent English can be attributed to the secretarial work she did after leaving school. Firstly working for the Japanese embassy and then as secretary to the Finnish ambassador in Bangkok.

When she followed this by working for UNICEF she told me that the job was mainly admin based, she never got to see the children that were helped. So when she came to Pattaya to work at the orphanage here and saw first hand the good work that was being done for disabled, blind and generally disadvantaged children, she knew she had "Come to the Right Place".

In August of this year HHNFT Director Radchada Chomjinda was selected as a distinguished female role model and honored by The Senate Standing Committee on Social Development and Children, Youth, Women, the Elderly, the Disabled and the Underprivileged Affairs. She received the award at Thailand's Parliament Building (The Senate Wing) in Bangkok and in her typically modest way, Khun Toy says the best thing about receiving the award was the recognition it gave to HHNFT.

Shining a light on the multiple programs, the foundation does including: a drop-In Center, offering food, clothing, medical care, and counseling to children in crisis. A Child Protection & Development Center (CPDC), which houses abused or trafficked children cared for by nannies, teachers, and counselors. Outreach programs on the streets and in migrant communities, supporting children at risk of exploitation, and an Education Center for those whose families lack access to formal schooling such as migrant children, many from Laos, Cambodia and Myanmar who otherwise would be begging on the streets or sleeping rough on the beach

Khun Toy is keen to praise her team which includes a professional psychiatrist and associate judge, plus two who have degrees as licensed social workers. This means that each child can be properly assessed and cared for. They can also benefit from mixing with other children and learning languages, and skills to give them real tools for independence. Under Khun Toy's guidance, HHNFT runs initiatives like the Decoupage Project: where the youth learn to make decorative handicrafts, which are then sold to raise funds and buy presents (at Christmas for example).

Also the kids love working in the organic garden which teaches self-reliance through farming. Learning to cultivate pesticide-free vegetables using aquaponic systems, combining ecological awareness with practical life skills. The HGM Education Fund: In partnership with HHNFT also awards scholarships to underprivileged children so they can continue their studies right through into University. So the care goes on even beyond the 150 children I was privileged to see and hear sing to me at the Drop in Centre.

Help and donations are always needed for the excellent work the HHNFT does, especially now as recently and quite unexpectedly the foundation mourned the loss of Ewald Dietrich, a key founder and supporter, which created a huge and sudden gap both emotionally and financially. Khun Toy and her team have had to step up their fundraising efforts as a result and in fact she had just returned from a trip to Germany to do just that when I went to visit her at the centre. Due Diligence: A Must for Foreign Property Buyers in Thailand

by Anthony Justice

Thailand appeals to a wide range of nationalities with its stunning beaches, contemporary condominiums, and investment opportunities. However, many foreign buyers are unaware of the practical and legal pitfalls that lie behind the inviting prices and glossy brochures. As a consultant who frequently deals with foreigners purchasing real estate in Thailand, I have seen two kinds of clients: those who conduct due diligence and those who regret not having done their research. My goal is to help you avoid unpleasant surprises. Due diligence is not an optional step here—it's your main protection.

Recognizing the Actual Risks

The property market in Thailand doesn't work quite the same way as it does in many other countries. Yes, foreigners can legally own condominium units, but owning land is a different story with strict limitations. That's why many buyers end up exploring long-term leases, company setups, or usufruct arrangements — each of which comes with its own set of rules and fine print.

Because of all these layers, things can easily go wrong when someone jumps into a purchase too quickly. I've seen buyers rely on friendly assurances, assumptions, or a smooth-talking agent, only to discover problems later on. Some found out the title deed didn't match what was registered at the Land Office. Others learned that their building had already reached the foreign ownership quota, that construction permits were missing, or that the property they bought was carrying someone else's debt. These situations are far more common than many people think, and they're exactly why due diligence is so important. These issues might have been avoided by carrying out appropriate due diligence prior to completing the transaction. When we do due diligence for clients, our main aim is straightforward: to make sure the property you're planning to buy is truly what it appears to be, without hidden issues. The process typically includes:

Verification of Title Deeds

We go to the Land Office to check the property's title deed. This lets us confirm that the seller genuinely owns the property and has the clear right to transfer it to you.

Check for Encumbrance and Liability

Properties in Thailand can come with mortgages, liens, leases, usufructs, or other registered rights attached to them—and these don't simply vanish when the property is sold. We make sure you're not unknowingly taking on someone else's debt or obligations when you buy.

Review of Foreign Ownership Quota (for Condos)

By law, foreigners can own only up to 49% of the total sellable area of a condominium project. Many buyers are unaware of this—and end up unable to register their purchase even after paying. We verify available quota before anything is signed.

Background Check for Developers or Sellers

We check the developer's track record, completed projects, and any financial issues or disputes. We check resale units for any legal cases, bankruptcy concerns, or irregularities involving the seller.

Zoning and Building Permits

We verify that building permits, land use approvals, and environmental requirements are met for homes, villas, or off-plan projects. This step is crucial for avoiding demolition orders or unregistrable structures.

Reviewing Contract

To make sure your rights are adequately safeguarded, we review the contract to ensure they are legally binding, transparent, and do not contain unfavorable terms that could put you at a disadvantage.

Why Due Diligence Is Even More Important for Foreign Buyers

Foreign investors often turn to agents, friends, or sellers for information. But if anything goes wrong later, the Thailand's legal system places responsibility on the buyer—not the seller.

Additionally, foreign buyers must comply with specific rules such as:

- Sending money from overseas correctly to obtain the Foreign Exchange Transaction Certificate, which is required to own a condo.
- Making sure that leases are properly registered to be enforceable.
- Avoiding unlawful nominee arrangements when buying land.

A minor error in any of these areas could result in the loss of ownership rights or prevent resale.

My Professional Recommendation

If you plan to buy property in Thailand—whether it's a condo, villa, or land lease—engage a qualified Thai lawyer or consultant before paying a deposit. A developer may tell you everything is fine, but due diligence should always be handled independently. The cost of the due diligence itself is much less than the peace of mind you get from knowing your investment is legal and safe.

Celebrating the Festive Season in a Multicultural School Community

For many families living abroad, December brings a swirl of emotions. The festive season arrives wrapped in nostalgia, tradition and memories of home. Yet in Thailand, where international communities are wonderfully varied and schools bring together children from dozens of countries, this time of year also offers something unique: the opportunity to celebrate Christmas and other seasonal traditions in a way that is inclusive, joyful and culturally rich. International schools across Thailand work hard to create this balance every year. With students representing nationalities from every corner of the globe, the festive season becomes far more than a countdown to Christmas; it becomes a celebration of community.

A Season That Means Something Different to Everyone

The first challenge, and privilege, of being in an international school setting is recognising that December holds a different meaning for each family. For some, it is a deeply religious period. For others, it is a cultural holiday centred on food, family and gifts. And for many, it is simply a special time marked by lights, music and a general sense of goodwill.

Schools aim to honour these differences without prioritising any one tradition above another; after all, Thailand is majority Buddhist but with thriving Muslim, Hindu and Christian communities, among others. The festive season becomes an opportunity to teach students about diversity, respect and curiosity. Rather than assuming that Christmas sits at the centre of the month, educators design activities and events that acknowledge a wide spectrum of celebrations, from Christmas to New Year festivals in various cultures, and even the Thai traditions that continue as usual throughout December.

Creating an Inclusive Atmosphere

One of the simplest yet most effective ways schools embrace the festive period is through atmosphere. Children adore the sense of magic that comes with twinkling lights, themed displays and decorations lovingly assembled by teachers, staff and sometimes even parents. But the decorations in international schools tend to be intentionally varied. You may see a Christmas tree next to a display about winter celebrations around the world, or paper lanterns created by students from countries where December isn't a major holiday at all. Classrooms often have "festive corners" where students contribute their own symbols of celebration, whether that's a Christmas ornament, a traditional craft from home or a drawing of their favourite seasonal food. This kind of visual representation sends a powerful message: everyone belongs, and everyone's traditions matter.

Learning Through Celebration

Many schools use the festive season as a springboard for learning. It's a natural point in the year to explore comparative cultures, geography, storytelling and religious education, all woven into activities that feel fun and engaging.

You might see students researching how winter is celebrated in their home countries, writing reflections about their family traditions or tasting foods from around the world at a multicultural fair. Teachers often incorporate music, drama and art, allowing children to express themselves creatively while learning about the significance of celebrations elsewhere.

In Early Years and Primary settings especially, role-play and storytelling bring these moments to life. One classroom might re-enact the Nativity for cultural understanding, while next door students might explore the symbolism of light in different festivals. The aim is never to promote one belief, but to cultivate a sense of global awareness and empathy.

Events That Bring the Community Together

International schools often act as community hubs for expat families, and the festive season is one of the rare times of year when everyone gathers in the same space. From winter concerts and charity drives to relaxed family afternoons with games and market stalls, these events help families feel connected at a time when many are far from home.

What stands out most in these moments is the sense of togetherness. Parents from different countries swap stories about how they celebrated as children. Children delight in singing songs, sometimes in several languages, without feeling the need to “belong” to any one tradition. Staff greet families warmly, knowing how important it is to recreate that familiar sense of warmth that December brings. Charitable giving is also a common thread in international schools. The festive period becomes a chance to teach students about compassion and responsibility towards others, whether through donation drives, fundraising for local causes or organising visits to community organisations.

Supporting Students Who Find the Season Difficult

It's important to acknowledge that not all students experience the festive season positively. Some miss extended family; others may feel overwhelmed by the unfamiliarity of new customs. International schools therefore take care to ensure the season remains supportive as well as celebratory.

Pastoral teams and teachers are often particularly attentive at this time of year. They look out for students who need a little reassurance, encourage open conversations and make sure that no child feels excluded or pressured to participate in activities that don't align with their family's beliefs. The message is simple: everyone is welcome to join in, and everyone is equally respected if they choose not to.

Celebrating What Unites Us

In the end, what defines the festive season in Thailand's international schools is not a single event, tradition or holiday. It is the shared experience of celebrating together, of finding common ground amid differences. Whether families come from London, Seoul, Moscow, Mumbai or Bangkok, December in an international school setting offers a reminder that community is something we create, not something we inherit. For many expat families, this is what makes the festive season abroad so memorable. It becomes a celebration of many traditions, woven together in harmony, a true reflection of the multicultural world our children are growing up in.

BEST SPORTING EVENTS OF 2025

By Steve Wade

We're coming to the end of the sporting year so let's take a look at some of the outstanding performances of the last twelve months which have made 2025 another memorable year in the world of sport around the globe.

Golf history was made in the Masters at Augusta in April when Rory McIlroy joined the elite group of players to have won the "Grand Slam", which is a victory in all four majors, the Masters, the US Open, the US PGA and the British Open over the course of a career. He joins legends of the game such as Gary Player, Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods in this exclusive club and it puts him in competition with Nick Faldo and Seve Ballesteros for the title of the greatest golfer Europe has produced.

Of course where McIlroy is involved nothing is ever straightforward and having given up a seven shot lead to runner-up Justin Rose, he was forced into a playoff with the Englishman which he won on the first extra hole. That kind of performance is typical of McIlroy and the kind of swashbuckling golf that he plays has endeared him to millions of golf fans around the world. He finished the year with four victories and has become only the second player in history, behind a certain Tiger Woods, to earn over $100 million in a single season.

McIlroy also played a major part in the other big golfing story of the year, Europe retaining the Ryder Cup on American soil. The event was marred by some appalling behaviour from spectators and we can only hope that the outpouring of criticism from the press and some of the greats of the past will encourage the crowds to behave in a way befitting the game when the competition returns to Ireland in 2027. In the end team Europe only scrambled home after the singles matches having taken what most people thought was an unassailable 11.5 - 4.5 lead into the final day.

This lends weight to the theory that the Americans are uncomfortable in the team events over the first two days but excel in the individual matches on the last day and the team USA comeback in the singles matches was indeed remarkable. The Ryder Cup is one of the very few times that golf is played as a team game throughout the year and the format lends itself to being a great spectacle. Let's hope the fans can enjoy it in the future without recreating some of the scenes we witnessed at Bethpage Black this year.

In Formula 1 Max Verstappen managed to hold on to the drivers title for the fourth successive year but in the constructor's championship the incredible resurgence of McLaren continued with their first win since 1998.

In tennis in the men's game, something quite remarkable is happening. After the twenty year domination by Nadal, Djokovic and Federer we now have two players that are leagues ahead of the rest in the shape of the Spaniard Carlos Alvaraz and Jannik Sinner from Italy. Their supremacy is such that the only Grand Slam final not contested by the two of them playing each other was the Australian Open in January where Sinner defended his title with a comfortable three set victory.

Since then they have met each other in the French, Wimbledon and US Open finals with the Spaniard coming out on top 2-1. The recent Champion of Champions tournament, which matches the top eight players in the world against each other, saw them both reach the final without dropping a set and the world rankings, where Alvaraz is shading Sinner for the top spot by a few hundred points, sees the third best player trailing some 5000 points behind!

In football, Harry Kane continued his remarkable goal scoring record for both club and country and after his continuing heroics for Bayern Munich, he must now go down as one of the greatest players ever to come from England. His figures for the German club are quite extraordinary and he continues to find the net for England too.

Let's hope he can carry that form forward to the World Cup next year. Also scoring goals for fun is Erling Haaland, who's record since the start of the new Premier League season is quite ridiculous and he too has carried that form forward to the international scene for Norway, who have become lively outsiders for the World Cup after trouncing Italy in a recent qualifier 4-1 away from home, with Haaland claiming two of the goals

There have been plenty of other highlights in 2025, but alas we haven't space to share them here. Sports such as Cycling, Athletics and Darts have produced moments of high drama and I think we can expect more of the same in 2026, with the centrepiece being the FIFA World Cup, which is being shared this time between the USA, Canada and Mexico. With the expansion from 32 to 48 teams and the competition running for five weeks in the Summer, It's going to take some stamina to follow your country if they go all the way with the time difference being what it is. It'll be worth it though!

The success has continued in the new season with McLaren holding an unassailable lead in this year's table and both of the team's drivers, Lando Norris and Oscar Piastri battling it out with Verstappen for this season's title. To see Verstappen still in with a chance of retaining his title, however slim that may be, in a car that is clearly inferior to both of the McLarens is a testament to his outstanding ability and dogged determination to wring every point that he can from the car. With the sacking of Christian Horner after twenty years in charge and a new deal with Ford in place, alongside a new team, if Red Bull get back on track for 2026 Verstappen is going to take an awful lot of beating.

The gulf between these two and the rest is huge at the moment and unless some great new young talent comes through, with Alvaraz at only 22 and Sinner at 24 we can expect these two to dominate the game for many years to come.

Among other notable achievements in 2025 was the claiming of the undisputed best heavyweight on the planet title by Oleksandr Usyk, He has now earned himself a place in the boxing hall of fame by beating everyone that has stood in front of him, a thing that all the great heavyweights of the past have done and he's has done it by being the best in all departments, A truly remarkable fighter.

A Seasonal Tale of Tailgaters (a.k.a. Close-Up Enthusiasts)

There are many kinds of drivers roaming the earth—some cautious, some confused, and some who appear to be navigating via spiritual guidance alone. But among these tribes, one stands out for its sheer audacity. The driver who believes the best way to overtake you is to first perform an examination of your car's exhaust pipe. These are the Close-Up Enthusiasts. We've all come across them. You're driving along at a reasonable speed, perhaps even a generous speed, when suddenly your rearview mirror transforms from what was once a peaceful reflection of the road behind you, to now becoming an extreme close-up of a front grille, a headlight and possibly the driver's fearful face.

Some believe tailgaters are simply big fans of suspense. They want to turn the simple act of driving anywhere into an edge-of-your-seat thriller. Will he pass or won't he? Will my brake lights give him a heart attack? Tune in next second to find out! These drivers appear convinced that if they just get close enough, your car will eventually dissolve, vaporize, or politely step aside. But the truly fascinating part is what happens when you finally move over to let them pass.

They roar past you as if they're on their way to defuse a bomb, but within six seconds you see them again ... behind another car ... tailgating that poor soul with the same zeal and intimacy as they did you. It's like watching a nature documentary: "And here we see the wild tailgater in his natural habitat, pursuing his next victim with impressive determination".

Being tailgated is a universal annoyance and a reminder that while we all share the road, we do not all share the same understanding of personal space. Some drivers understand the concept of a "safe following distance." Others believe that safe distances are for the weak. So the next time you look in your mirror and see a car so close you could pass them a mint, take a deep breath. Signal calmly, move aside if it's safe and as they launch themselves past you in a burst of misplaced heroism, remember, you've just given them the greatest gift of all, the open road, where they can go tailgate someone else with all the enthusiasm their oversized ego demands. And there's something poetic about that. So much so that I've written a song about it....and, it's my new single release. CRAZY DRIVER (In The Rear View Mirror).

On a recent road trip to Kanchanaburi with my girlfriend, KayJay, for yet another running event, I frequently got nervous as some chancer was trying to overtake me on a narrow road. Suddenly, a tune popped into my head with the lyrics for a chorus. I'm now wondering why no-one has already written a song about this subject as it's a common serious matter.

My last single, 'She Made Me Do It', spent ten weeks in the top five of the UK's Revival Chart including two weeks at number 1. Let's hope my new single will have similar success, whilst sending out a message of awareness about driving unselfishly, especially during the coming season.

Hear my new song 'Crazy Driver' and see the accompanying video on YouTube – FAB BAZ MUSIC TV – Barry Upton – Crazy Driver. Have a very safe Yuletide folks.

ACCOUNTING FOR SUSTAINABILITY

CHAPTER 2: THE EXISTENCE OF BUSINESS

AND THE ROLE OF ACCOUNTANTS

by Siriyothin Accounting & Law Firm

In the previous chapter, we discussed the qualities of financial reports that support effective management decision-making. In this chapter, we will further explore accounting and financial control throughout the business cycle, which can be divided into four stages:

1. Start-Up Period

The strategic focus is business survival, often depending heavily on external sources of funding.

2. Growth Period

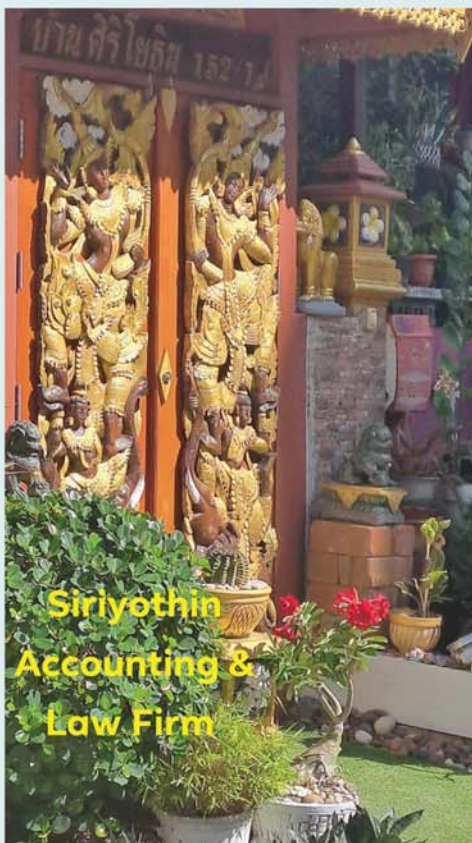

The strategic focus shifts to market expansion, increased investment, and securing additional funding.

3. Maturity (Full) Period

The strategic focus emphasizes maintaining strong liquidity and ensuring satisfactory return on investment.

4. Decline (Regression) Period

The strategic focus is on sustaining operations, which may require the disposal of non-essential assets to ensure business survival. Modern accountants should go beyond traditional bookkeeping and act as Strategic Sentinels who can identify early warning signs of operational issues and alert management so that corrective action can be taken.

According to Thai Accounting Standard (TAS) No. 1, management is responsible for assessing the business's ability to continue as a going concern. While Thai Standard on Auditing (TSA) No. 570 requires auditors to examine and search for appropriate evidence to support the management's assessment, including evaluating

A key tool for business monitoring is the Cash Flow Statement, and Projection they serve as an early-warning signal, and in the next chapter, we will provide a more detailed explanation of how to use cash flow information for business sustainability.

ASIAN OPTICAL

When did you last have your eyes tested?

Like regular trips to the dentist having your eye tested is something we often forget to do and yet we should get them checked at least once a year.

There are many opticians in Pattaya and quite often on our Facebook sites Pattaya Trader - Discover Pattaya and Pattaya Trader Expat Ladies Group we are asked to give recommendations. Asian Optical on Pratumnak Soi 4 is the only one we recommend. This is because unlike some other opticians that are little more than shops selling glasses in Pattaya Asian Optical can give you a proper eye test and they also have a fantastic selection of frames, lenses and contact lenses.

Contact Khun Charn for an appointment
091 7499965 and remember that if you wear contact lenses you need to take them out at least 3 hours before you are due to take your test.

St. Augustine's Nights of Lights A Dazzling Christmas Display!

By Carla Marie Rupp and Jason Rupp

When dreaming of a Christmassy getaway in the USA, we recommend Florida's spectacular Saint Augustine. Founded in 1565, as a European settlement, its famous Nights of Lights celebration make this city on Florida's Historic Coast, extra special during the holidays. You feel as if you've stepped into an Old World Christmas scene with historic streets and Spanish colonial architecture colorfully lit up for visitors to enjoy..

You have to experience the free, award-winning Nights of Lights to believe it! No tickets are required. We've never seen anything like it and highly recommend a trip to St. Augustine, FL, for a festive Christmas experience. Visitors can enjoy the Plaza, sing carols, visit the big Christmas tree, and see the smiles of happy shoppers in the glowing streets.

Tours (for a fee) are offered, some by boat or trolley, to enjoy the beautiful sights. But strolling is fine, too. In fact the St. Augustine, Ponte Vedra & The Beaches Visitors and Convention Bureau stresses that this is not a drive-through event. It is best enjoyed by using the free park-and-ride shuttles and then exploring the sights and festivities on foot or with a tour.

Nights of Lights, illuminates downtown St Augustine annually from mid-November until mid-January. Millions of tiny white lights decorate the city, its buildings and the tops of the trees Those who prefer not to walk can choose from dozens of tours including Old Town Trolley's Nights of Lights Tour, Ripley's Red Train Nights of Lights Tour, Very Un-Merry Grinchmas Ride with Tasting Tours, Pinkmas Nights of Lights Tour (a Barbie-inspired Holiday Adventure), St. Augustine Eco Tours and Scenic Cruise, Florida Water Tours.

For us, being with loved ones was magical when we attended Light-Up! Night with three generations. We huddled together to take pictures of the illuminated Lightner Museum, Castillo de San Marco, Cedar House Inn and the breathtaking Bridge of Lions among the many sparkling attractions. After experiencing the memorable sights, we stopped for Mexican food at Little Sombrero, one of the many kinds of cuisines offered in the city.

A Christmas itinerary in St. Augustine can also include a Holly Jolly Shopping Spree, the Christmas Market of St. Augustine, its Christmas Parade, and the Holiday Regatta of Lights. Most people find that they can easily walk everywhere, whether downtown, uptown, or at the beach. You can sense the history. Get your picture taken with an oversized pirate figure. Take a Spanish cooking class, or stroll through the Fountain of Youth Archaeological Park. This is a tribute to the famous explorer Ponce de Leon and his legendary quest for youth. A spot where the explorer is said to have landed in 1513 while searching for a mythical "fountain of youth." Visitors can drink water from a spring amongst reenactors portraying the people of the past..

St. Augustine also has a lot of art galleries where local artists get inspiration from the Spanish colonial architecture, cobblestone street and sunsets over the fort. We also recommend stopping at Peace Pie to try the delicious ice cream sandwiches. They take two homemade cookies, put a scoop of ice cream and pie filling into the middle. With over 30 delicious flavors including peanut brownie, pecan pie, and of course key lime a local favourite at this colorful, 60s style shop. There are also tours available of the San Sebastian Winery. It has a rooftop bar, offering wine, food, and live jazz at sunset.

Nearby, the Saint Augustine Distillery also has tastings, and tours featuring the history of bourbon. For a cozy outdoor meal, we also recommend 57 Casa de Vino which offers a great atmosphere and exceptional charcuterie with cheeses, fruits, olives, nuts, and aged meats. We've been to St. Augustine a number of times. On our first visit we parked our rental car and bought our tickets from Old Town Trolley Tours of St. Augustine where you can get 1 or 2 day get on get off tickets. A highlight of our tour was the St. Augustine Alligator Farm Zoological Park. We not only saw alligators, but also lemurs, sloths, and a lovely bird sanctuary. Those brave enough can even go ziplining over the alligators but you have to be brave and fit for that!

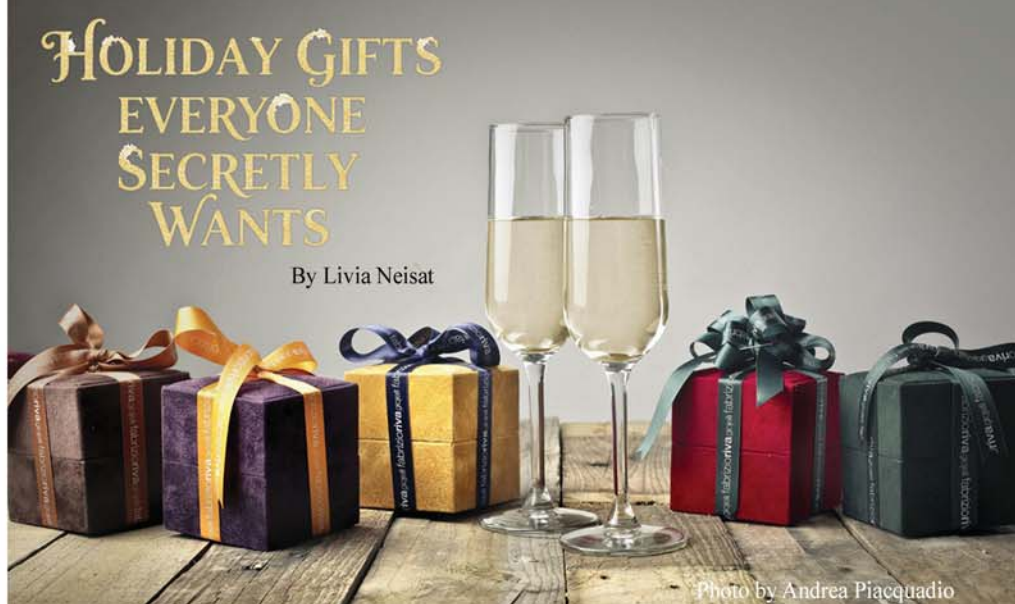

While dazzling Nights of Lights is a wonderful time to go to Saint Augustine, the city is well worth a visit at any time of year. Located between Northeast and East Central Florida, it is an easy trip from Orlando, Daytona, or Jacksonville and has been named one of the top 10 small cities in America by Conde Nast Traveler magazine.

The 2025 holiday season is shaping up to be all about comfort, ease, and meaningful upgrades that fit into daily life. People want gifts that feel practical yet elevated, thoughtful without being dramatic, and luxurious without slipping into excess.

The most appreciated gifts right now are the ones that quietly improve routines, elevate a space, or make someone feel pulled together. If you want to give something people will genuinely enjoy, focus on items that deliver real value instead of fleeting novelty. Many of the most wanted gifts this season share one theme. They make daily life gentler, calmer, or more intentional. People are exhausted by complicated gadgets and visual clutter. They want simplicity that feels like relief.

Luxury Home Comforts That Feel Personal

People gravitate toward gifts that subtly elevate their space without drawing too much attention. Soft throw blankets with breathable textures, supportive pillows for better sleep or posture, aromatherapy diffusers that instantly shift a room's mood, and small decorative pieces that blend with any interior all hit the right note. Comfort has become the new status symbol, and anything that turns a routine into something soothing will land well.

Practical Upgrades People Never Buy For Themselves

Everyone has items they keep meaning to replace but never do. These make ideal holiday gifts because they feel thoughtful and useful at the same time. High quality tumblers, durable bags for weekend trips and bath essentials that bring a spa feeling to the evening routine, are all smart choices. These show you pay attention to what would genuinely make someone's life easier.

Aesthetic Tech That Looks Good Anywhere

People are tired of bulky, unattractive tech cluttering their homes. This season is about slim designs, neutral colors, and items that function well without becoming eyesores. Slim LED lamps that enhance focus, small speakers that double as decor, smart notebooks that digitize handwriting, and compact chargers with minimalist shapes are all rising quietly in popularity. Tech and aesthetics finally align in a way that people actually want to display.

Scents, Self Care, and Modern Wellness

The fragrance wave is still at its peak, and people want scents that feel personal rather than generic. This applies to home fragrances and personal scents. The broader wellness category is just as strong. Skincare basics that elevate morning routines, satin pillowcases that prevent breakage, facial tools that encourage slow self care, and bath salts that create a reset moment continue to dominate because they work for everyone.

Gifts For People Who Love To Travel

Travel is fully back, and so are gifts that support smooth, enjoyable trips. Travelers want gear that is light, durable, and attractive without going overboard. Travelers appreciate items that reduce stress from packing to unpacking. Compact toiletry organizers, neck pillows with real support, foldable tote bags for unexpected stops, and multi device chargers that cover every situation are strong options. These essentials simplify the journey from start to finish. Seat organizers that reduce car clutter, supportive travel pillows, insulated bottles that maintain temperature, and interior fresheners that keep the car feeling clean all make road trips easier and more enjoyable. These gifts combine practicality with comfort.

Gifts For People Who Love Aesthetic Home Styling

Home styling continues to dominate online trends, and people want their spaces to feel calm and curated. The good news is that creating that feeling does not require a large budget. Small touches can transform a room's energy quickly and subtly. Ceramic vases with clean lines, warm accent lighting that softens a space, mini shelves for books or candles, and neutral throws that add texture are all welcome additions. These pieces work universally and enhance any room without overpowering it. Lamps that produce warm light, sculptural bookends, trays for jewelry or keys, and woven storage baskets that match modern interiors offer both beauty and purpose. People love items that keep their home organized without compromising style.

For the Fitness Fan

Fitness gifts have shifted away from heavy equipment and toward smaller essentials that integrate smoothly into daily routines. Resistance bands, practical duffel bags, smart water bottles, and comfortable performance socks all make training easier without taking up space. These gifts fit effortlessly into an active lifestyle.

For the Homebody

Some people prefer quiet evenings and slow weekends. Gifts that support relaxation always hit the mark. Cozy sleepwear sets, plush slippers, candle collections, and evening journals make home life more soothing and comforting. These gifts feel intimate in the best way.

TRAVELLING ABROAD FOR THE FESTIVE SEASON?

DISCOVER 5 OF THE UK & EUROPE'S BEST CHRISTMAS MARKETS.

Covent Garden, London

Originally a fruit and vegetable market dating back to the 17th century, Covent Garden has evolved into a lively hub for shopping, dining, and entertainment. The central piazza is the area's focal point where street performers, musicians, and magicians add to the atmosphere by entertaining tourists and locals alike. This is where you'll find the towering Covent Garden Christmas tree.

Across from the piazza there's the covered Apple Market which offers handmade crafts, clothing and art and is always beautifully decorated during the festive period. Look out for the nearby Jubilee market which happens every Monday. This is where you will find stalls selling antiques, fine porcelain and jewellery - ideal if you're looking for something a little more unique as a Christmas present.

Nuremberg

Dating back to 1530, the Nuremberg Christkindlesmarkt offers a traditional German take on the holiday spirit. Hosted in the city's Main Market Square it boasts nearly 200 stalls which are built of spruce trees from the region. Here you can expect to see everything from wooden figurines, decorative stars, children's toys, knitwear and leather goods.

The Christkindlesmarkt also has children's rides and workshops like candle and gingerbread decorating, also Feuerzangenbowle: the world's largest punch bowl. It measures 2.5 metres wide and holds 9,000 litres of warm red wine with spices, lemon, orange peel and rum.

Strasbourg

Strasbourg is known as the “Capitale de Noël,” during the Christmas Period. With its stunning Cathedral as a backdrop and giant Christmas tree, the whole city is decked out in Christmas decorations from the end of November until after Christmas.

Since 1570, the city has embraced the festive season with hundreds of charming wooden chalets, where visitors can expect to see handmade crafts, local delicacies, and festive decorations. Choirs, concerts, and glowing Christmas lights make Strasbourg a true symbol of European Christmas tradition.

Manchester

Established in 1999, Manchester's Christmas Markets have grown into a sprawling celebration spread across Albert Square, St Ann's Square, Exchange Square, and Piccadilly Gardens. Each market area has its own unique atmosphere and visitors can wander among hundreds of traditional wooden chalets offering everything from handcrafted gifts and decorations to delicious international cuisine. The iconic Manchester giant Santa, affectionately nicknamed “Zippy,” watches over the festivities, providing the perfect photo opportunity for families, friends, and couples who gather to enjoy the live music, and festive entertainment. A perfect way to embrace the magic of Christmas in true Mancunian style.

Prague

Prague's Gothic spires and cobbled streets give the city a storybook charm at any time of the year but at Christmas beneath with twinkling lights and a dusting of snow Prague becomes even more enchanting. The Old Town Square is at the heart of the celebrations, where wooden stalls have handmade ornaments, carved toys, and sweet treats like trdelník—a warm, sugar-coated pastry. Wenceslas Square and Prague Castle also shine with decorations, offering smaller markets and panoramic views of the illuminated city below. Visitors can glide across outdoor ice rinks while churches throughout Prague host classical concerts, adding a touch of elegance to the season. As “the City of a Hundred Spires” becomes wrapped in Christmas magic.

Christmas Styling Tips from Tara Home

Create a festive home with a few simple accents that bring warmth and magic into your space.

1. Choose a Color Story

Select 2–3 colors and keep them consistent. Gold, champagne, and ivory create a refined, timeless look that instantly elevates your festive décor.

2. Layer Textures

Mix velvet, brocade, linen, and faux fur. Even small textured accents — cushions, stockings, table décor — add depth and a cozy holiday feeling.

3. Pick Statement Ornaments

Invest in standout pieces: oversized baubles, handcrafted angels, collectible figurines or nutcrackers. They set the tone and bring a designer touch to your tree.

4. Create Mini Vignettes

Group décor on consoles, shelves, or coffee tables. A festive figure paired with a candle or bowl creates a beautiful holiday “moment.”

5. Use Warm Lighting

Soft lights transform any space. Add string lights to your tree, mirrors, or lanterns to create a warm, magical glow.
